Loss In Rail Wreck May Be $300,000

Pottery Damaged In Pennsy Mishap At East Palestine

EAST PALESTINE — Three locomotive crewmen leaped safely from their overturning diesel units in a grinding train wreck early today which crumpled the engines, smashed cars, damaged a pottery building and caused a property loss which may hit $300,000.

A westbound Pennsylvania Railroad freight train of five engines and 148 cars hit an open switch in the western part of the city at 2 a. m. in a tearing smashup that left a mile of torn tracks.

The five engine units were flipped onto their sides, and 38 cars left the rails, including five near the W. S. George Pottery Co. plant, one of which smashed through a brick wall into the building.

Work crews, who only Thursday removed the last of the smashed hopper cars of a 19-car derailment near the N. Market St. crossing, were on the job today, clearing away wreckage.

Railroad officials said they hope to get all the tracks open for traffic by Monday, but the work may take longer.

The Cleveland Regional office of the Pennsylvania refused to estimate the damage but said only one of the diesel units received extensive damage. The units cost about $200,000 each.

Of the wrecked cars, 28 piled up in the area near the George plant — now leased by Royal China Co. of Sebring — while the other 10 are off the tracks just behind the diesel units.

About 40 kilnhands and other Royal workers were on the job at

Thirty-eight cars were crumpled and piled up in the mishap which caused damage estimated unofficially at over $300,000.

Paddock Club 'Hit' By Sheriff Raiders

The Paddock Club on Route 30 near Chester was reportedly raided Friday night by Hancock County Sheriff Joseph H. Manypenny.

Neither the sheriff nor the participating deputies was available today for comment on results of the raid and none of the squires who handle such cases had held any hearings this morning.

Weekend's Weather Will Be Humid, Damp

The Tri-State district faces a weekend of continued warm and humid weather with widely scattered showers and thunderstorms in afternoon and evenings.

The Ohio weatherman said the high range today will be 78 to 84 degrees with a low of 60-66 tonight. The downtown had a low of 66 this morning.

In Dust-Hunting Orbit

U.S. 'Beer Can' Satellite May Assist Astronauts

WASHINGTON (AP) — A "beer can satellite" whirled around the earth today on a space dust-hunting mission that may help ensure the safety of astronauts on interplanetary flights.

The 127-pound space messenger —the 50th American satellite to be placed in orbit since January 1958 — was gunning around the globe once every 98 minutes at altitudes estimated at 275 miles at the closest point and 565 at the farthest.

The satellite was hurled aloft Friday afternoon by a Scout launching rocket in what space agency scientists hailed as a virtually perfect operation, with the achieved orbit very close to the 280 to 610-mile orbit originally planned.

Scientists of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration termed the venture a signal success for the Scout — the world's first known all-solid fuel booster.

The job of the orbiting satellite, which began radioing information to the earth soon after launch, is to make the best study yet of the number and penetrating power of tiny space bullets called micrometeoroids which could strike a space vehicle at speeds from 7 to 45 miles a second.

Composed of iron and other substances, these cosmic dust particles — possibly the final debris from an exploded planet — are deemed potentially damaging to space vehicles and even a possible lethal threat to astronauts unless proper shielding is provided.

What scientists need to know is just how dangerous they really might be so that space vehicles can be designed to offset any hazard without unnecessarily overweighting the space craft with shielding.

The satellite, launched from the space agency's Wallops Island, Va., station, is formally named Explorer XIII and has the technical name micrometeoroid satellite.

But some space agency technicians informally dubbed it the "beer can satellite" because of the shape of some of its dust-detecting instruments.

Claims Of Idle Show Continued Decrease

Unemployment compensation claims continued to decline this week, dropping to 661 from 683 for the week ending Aug. 19, Harry L. Dinsmore, manager of the Ohio State Employment Service, said today.

Each week which shows a decrease sets a year's low for the office, Dinsmore said.

Claims during the past week included 166 filed under the federal extension and 495 on the regular program. They included 64 new and 431 continued claims under the regular program and 16 new and 150 extended on the federal basis, Dinsmore said.

Throng Seen For Finish Of County Fair

LISBON — The final day of the 116th annual Columbiana County Fair opened this morning with overcast skies after the biggest paid attendance for the grandstand show Friday evening.

The Fair Board estimated attendance at 18,000 for the first four days, which includes those with passes and children under 12 who are admitted free.

Paid attendance is over 10,000 and is running a little ahead of last year at this time, according to Clarence Crosser, fair secretary.

The King Brothers Rodeo again filled the grandstand with almost 1,200 paid admissions last night. There were 350 in the grandstand for the tractor pull in the afternoon and 188 in the forenoon.

Paid attendance for the first four days has been below expectations but the Fair Board said it expected a large attendance today for the final horse racing program and last showing of the rodeo tonight at 8.

The Flying Alexanders, trapeze act, will perform for the last time tonight.

Winners in the four classes of the tractor pulls Friday, with prizes of $15, $10, $7.50, $5 and $2.50, were:

Class B—4,501 to 6,200 pounds

DON'T BE '1' IN '61

A Salineville area man injured fatally in a truck-auto crash on Route 39 Friday night and a Youngstown boy killed when his motorbike was hit by a car near Columbiana became the second and third traffic victims in Columbiana County in the past two days.

Benjamin Eastham, 39, of Salineville R.D. 1 died this morning at 2:10 at City Hospital of a crushed chest and other injuries suffered in the Route 39 crash about 11 p.m.

David O'Brien, 13, of Youngstown was killed at 7 p.m. when a car hit his motorbike on the Lower Elkton Rd. in front of the home of his grandparents.

The two deaths pushed to 12 the road toll so far in the county for 1961, compared to 19 killed at this time last year. An East Liverpool woman died of injuries after being struck by a car at Wellsville Thursday night.

The Ohio Highway Patrol at Lisbon said Mr. Eastham was driving north in his 1953 station wagon when he apparently went left of center and the vehicle hit the rear wheels of a horse van driven south by James E. Ferguson, 25, of Uhrichsville.

The crash occurred about a half mile south of the Frischkorn Roller Rink and near the road to No. 16 School.

The victim suffered a crushed chest, fractured jaw, lacerations of the scalp and internal injuries. The death was ruled accidental later today by Dr. R. C. Costello, deputy county coroner.

Gardendale Man's Truck Enters Yard

A 23-year-old Gardendale motorist was charged with three violations by police Friday after he lost control of his car and ran it into the yard of a home at St. Clair Ave. and North St.

William Eugene Neuch of Gardendale Ave. was charged with reckless driving, leaving the scene of an accident and failing to conform to restrictions on his operator's permit.

Neuch was arrested about a block away from the accident scene, apparently while doubling back on St. Clair Ave., police said.

Officers said his operator's permit requires him to have a vehicle with an automatic transmission but that his 1941 pickup truck was equipped with a standard transmission.

Neuch told police he was headed north on St. Clair Ave. about 20 miles an hour and began to turn east onto North St. when his brakes failed and the truck knocked down a city street sign and then ran into the hedges at the home of Bruce A. Duer, 1300 St. Clair Ave.

76,500 Reserves And Guardsmen Called For Duty

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department, in the biggest mobilization since the Korean War, is ordering 76,500 reservists and National Guardsmen to active duty.

Most of the men are being ordered to report Oct. 1.

The call-up is part of the Kennedy administration's military build-up to be ready to deal with the Berlin situation and other world trouble spots.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara announced the call to active duty at a news conference late Friday.

Army and Air Force National Guard and reserve units that were alerted two weeks ago to possible duty are now being called up, he said. Navy men needed to man ships being added to the fleet also are being ordered to report.

The orders are going out to 311 units of the three services—210 of them Army, 58 Navy, 33 Air Force, plus miscellaneous outfits.

The call-up involves 46,500 Army Reservists and National Guardsmen, 23,600 Air Force men and 6,400 Navy Reservists.

McNamara said the orders do not specify how long the men will be held on active duty, but he noted that the authorization resolution passed by Congress placed a one-year limit on most recalls.

The secretary said the Defense Department hopes to release many of those being called as voluntary enlistments and draft inductions provide needed manpower.

In reply to newsmen's questions, McNamara said that if any of the activated units are sent overseas, dependents would not be allowed to go along.

Orders to the recalled units began going out Friday and kept flowing today. Commanding officers will get the first word and then notify individual reservists. It will take up to three weeks for individuals to get their personal orders.

When the beefing-up is completed, the Army will have 1,008,000

Rusk Slates Parley With 3 Allied Aides

Britain, France And West Germany Envoys Called In

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk called in the ambassadors of Britain, France and West Germany for a mid-morning conference today—presumably on the Berlin situation.

The department gave no reason for the meeting. Britain, France and the United States are the occupying powers in West Berlin.

The Western Big Three were expected to deliver notes to Moscow shortly warning against Red tampering with air corridors to West Berlin.

Washington authorities said they did not know just when the notes would be delivered.

The Western Allies agreed Friday on the wording of notes replying to a Soviet charge that the Allies have been airlifting West-German spies and provocateurs to West Berlin.

The Western capitals have rejected the Moscow charges in public statements.

The White House saw the Kremlin allegation—contained in a Soviet note Wednesday—as a threat

5 Killed, 10 Injured In Algiers Violence

ALGIERS (AP)—Europeans and Moslems were dining quietly in a restaurant Friday night when a grenade went off and a rebel band riddled them with submachine guns.

It was over in seconds: five persons lay dead, and 10 were badly injured.

The victims were among 10 persons killed and 17 injured during a day of terrorism by both the Algerian nationalists and European right-wingers that spread over the territory.

In addition, a delayed report was received that four French soldiers had been ambushed in their jeep and killed late Thursday near Boufarik.

Allied Notes Blast Soviet On Air Issue

Denounce Implied Threat To Berlin Link With West

MOSCOW (AP) — The United States, Britain and France today delivered notes strongly denouncing the Soviet Union's implied threat to the air corridors that link West Berlin with the western world.

The notes were delivered at the foreign ministry late this afternoon by messengers. Their contents will be released simultaneously at 5 p.m. EST in Washington, London, Paris and Moscow.

The Allies were replying to a Soviet note Wednesday which accused them of using the air corridors for the transport of subversive West German elements to West Berlin.

The Russians said this was a flagrant breach of the 1945 agreement which created the corridors.

With the Berlin situation being what it is, Allied diplomats immediately concluded that the Russians were laying the basis for an eventual attempt to stop civil air lines from flying between West Germany and West Berlin.

Although the contents of the Allied notes have not been released, it is understood they sharply warned against any Soviet attempt to tamper with traffic in the air corridors.

It is understood the notes are similar to the White House statement Thursday saying any interference with Allied access to West Berlin would be "an aggressive act" for which the Soviet government would have to bear responsibility.

Red China Cites U.S.

TOKYO (AP) — The Chinese Communists today charged a U.S. military plane had intruded into Chinese territorial air space Friday. They issued the "167th serious warning" through the Foreign Ministry. The New China News Agency said the plane flew over Kwangtung Province.

Body Found Upright On Davenport

Spouse Hands Over .22 Pistol As Police Arrive At Dwelling

Mrs. Louisa Brooks, 87, of Wood Alley was murdered shortly before noon today by her aged husband, who apparently intended to take his own life.

Police Chief Americo Radeschi arrested Hamblet Brooks, 89, in their small modest home out St. Clair Ave. just beyond the city limits, a .22-pistol still in his possession.

Brooks called a daughter residing in the neighborhood and she summoned a neighbor of the elderly couple, Guy Looman, who went to the home to investigate.

Looman found Mrs. Brooks dead and sitting upright in an old, red plush davenport in the littered livingroom. She appeared to have a wound in the chest and possibly another in the hip.

Looman called police and Brooks, who readily submitted to arrest, was taken to the police station for questioning and the arrival of Sheriff Russell VanFossan.

The tragedy occurred outside the city within the sheriff's jurisdiction.

The daughter hurriedly called Looman after Brooks reportedly had told her he had shot his wife and intended "to commit suicide."

However, Brooks apparently backed out as he did not appear wounded when placed in the cruiser for the trip downtown.

Neighbors quickly gathered at the scene and a child identified as a granddaughter of the victim was led away after breaking out in tears.

"Why did he do it?" she was heard to say between sobs.

First questioning of the retired pottery handler indicated the couple had quarreled over her inability to keep the house clean.

Police said much of the home was in disorder. An oil heater was in the livingroom, which also contained an old-fashioned television set.

The body was not removed for about half an hour until police were able to locate Dr. R. C. Costello, deputy county coroner.

The physician authorized release of the body to the sheriff, who raced in from Lisbon.

The shooting occurred about 11:30 shortly before Looman called police.

The home, a one-story combination block and frame, sits back from the street, which is just off St. Clair.

French Troop Withdrawal Voted By UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The General Assembly gave overwhelming approval Friday night to a demand that France negotiate withdrawal of its troops from Tunisia.

The United States, Britain and other NATO powers abstained when the vote came. France boycotted the debate.

With a thumping vote of 66 to 0, the assembly approved the resolution sponsored by 31 Asian-African countries and Communist Yugoslavia.

It called on France to pull back its forces from territory seized during last month's bloody battle around Bizerte naval base and to negotiate a timetable for complete troop withdrawal from Tunisia.

Hoffa's Due In Cincinnati For Debate

CINCINNATI (AP)—Teamsters President James R. Hoffa was expected here today for an announced public debate Sunday on the reasons why four Cincinnati Teamsters locals last week voted to leave the international.

It did not look as though there would be anybody for Hoffa to debate, as long as he insisted that the session be held in the Music Hall auditorium.

James T. Luken, leader of the revolt, said Friday night he had scheduled no meetings with Hoffa. Luken, president of the 2,200-member Dairy Drivers Local that spearheaded the revolt, has long been an opponent of Hoffa.

Luken said he will debate Hoffa and Ohio Teamsters President William Presser "as long as they are controlled by a neutral party, such as the press or television stations." According to Luken, Hoffa can be expected to rig the Music Hall audience in his favor.

Some 4,000 of approximately 15,000 Cincinnati area Teamsters joined the revolt, which this week spread to Middletown.

Instead of debating Hoffa, Luken is planning to appear on a television program ending at the time Hoffa's rally is scheduled to begin.

Luken said William Kircher, Cincinnati AFL-CIO director, and "several leading citizens of the community" will be on the program with him.

Kircher has expressed willingness to help Luken in a debate against Hoffa and Presser on neutral ground. Hoffa earlier challenged George Meany, president of AFL-CIO, to debate him.

A spokesman for Meany said his chief would not debate the teamsters president.

U.S. Officer Raps Reds On Berlin Curbs

BERLIN (AP) —Maj. Gen. Albert Watson II, U.S. commandant in Berlin, protested personally to the Soviet commandant today against what he called the illegal regulations of the East German Communists in limiting crossing points between East and West Berlin.

Watson blamed the Russian, Col. Andrei I. Solovyev, in part for incidents arising from the new rules.

Irate West Berliners have shouted insults at Soviet troops and tried to overturn Soviet jeeps. Friday night several thousand West Berliners demonstrated against the Communists. Angry crowds gathered today at two Communist pass offices newly opened in West Berlin.

West Berlin police closed the offices a few hours after the Communists opened them in West Berlin elevated railroad stations to issue permits for entry into the Red-ruled part of the city. They were at the Zoo station, West Berlin's biggest, and at Westkreuz.

Several hundred Berliners had made applications.

At the zoo someone had penciled an ironic sign: "Entrance to the concentration camp—one West mark (25 cents)."

A U.S. spokesman said the Allied commandants Friday issued a secret order to Mayor Willy Brandt's West Berlin government to see that the offices were not opened. They did open this morning, however.

A spokesman for the U.S. mission told reporters Watson spent three quarters of an hour at Soviet headquarters in suburban Karlshorst. He said nothing about any reply from Solovyev.

The Soviets usually reject such protests on the ground that these matters are the sole concern of the East German Communists.

Watson is chairman this month of the three-power command in West Berlin.

The East German Communists defied the West in opening travel offices at West Berlin railroad stations to issue permits for entry into East Berlin.

The offices were set up at two elevated railroad stations, the zoo and Kreuzberg. The elevated lines are administered throughout the city by the Communists under four-power agreement.

The West Berlin city government had announced the Reds would not be allowed to open their offices. A spokesman said consultations on what to do about the Red move were now being held with the Allied commandants.

The latest Red move posed the prospect of more trouble in the uneasy city. For years there has been a running East-West dispute over control of the elevated stations in the West.

The Western powers contend that only the rail tracks are under Red administration and that the platforms and booking offices are on Western territory.

As this new incident blew up the West police were already on alert for possible anti-Communist demonstrations.

in uniform, the Navy 657,000, the Air Force 888,227, and the Marine Corps 190,000.

No Marine Reservists are being called, McNamara said, because the corps is getting an adequate number of volunteers to build its strength.

With the direction to 76,500 men to get ready for service, there was a reprieve for others. The Defense Department decided that about a score of Army and Air Force units that had been alerted for possible duty now are not needed. It informed those units they were off the list.

Earlier in the day the Navy announced its ship-building program for the current fiscal year, which ends June 30. During that time 52 new ships will be under construction, and 22 others will be undergoing conversion through modernization.

Some of these ships will not be ready for the sea for months and even years.

City Reservists Remain 'Civilians'

The Defense Department s call-up of Reservists Friday hit a number of Tri-State units but Columbiana County components of the 7th Medium Tank Battalion have not been alerted.

Lt. John Markanton, commander of Co. A of East Liverpool, said the callup affects mainly support units. Co. C at East Palestine and Headquarters Co. at Salem are other units of the 7th.

An evacuation hospital unit with Steubenville and Stark County personnel, an engineers combat unit at Bellaire, an engineers pipeline outfit at Youngstown, and a quartermaster company at Beaver Falls were among those called to service.

Ohio Units Included In Active Duty Call

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohioans from all walks of life will find themselves in military uniform—some for the second or even third time—as a result of the activation Oct. 1 of some Air and Army National Guard and Army Reserve units.

Until now, most of the Ohio air guardsmen have trained one weekend a month and two weeks each summer. Those who fly the Air Guard's F84F jet fighter-bombers and support aircraft have put in additional time in order to fly 10 to 12 hours per month.

Although they just returned from two weeks of active duty in Michigan and South Carolina less than a week ago, most of the Ohio air guardsmen will be attending training sessions today and Sunday. The additional training is part of the drive to arrive at full combat capability as rapidly as possible.

Tactical Air Command (TAC), the Air Force organization responsible for close support of ground troops and designed to fight brush-fire wars, will gain most of the Ohio Air Guard outfits.

The Ohio air guardsmen probably will report first to the bases where they have been training—Lockbourne Air Force Base south of Columbus, the Springfield and Mansfield municipal airports, Toledo Express Airport at Swanton and Blue Ash Armory near Cincinnati.

Later, after things are pretty well organized, they may be moved elsewhere to help the TAC carry out its mission. This could include overseas duty.

The average age of the Air Guard is slightly higher than that of the regular Air Force flier. In the 166th Tactical Fighter Squadron at Columbus, for instance, the average age is almost 30.

The two youngest pilots in the 166th—one a Columbus policeman and the other an Ohio State University student—are 24. Their age is offset by some older men, veterans of World War II and Korea, and a number of 1953-54-55 college graduates who joined the Air Guard after learning to fly in the Air Force, Navy or Marines.

The 121st Tactical Fighter Wing, which encompasses the jet squadrons at Columbus (the 166th), Mansfield (164th) and Springfield (162nd), as well as a number of ground support squadrons, has about 1,500 airmen and officers.

In addition, there's the 112th Tactical Fighter Squadron at Toledo, which flies with the Indiana Air Guard's 122nd Tactical Fighter Wing, and the 123rd Aircraft Control and Warning Squadron at Blue Ash.

The latter, together with the 121st and 122nd wings and their squadrons, are among the Air Guard units called to active duty for a minimum of 12 months.

Col. Dale E. Shafer Jr. of Germantown, a company pilot in civilian life, is commander of the 121st Wing. He is a World War II fighter ace.

All the Ohio Air Guard units have combat history in World War II, and two—the 166th and 112th—were recalled for the Korean conflict. At that time the 112th was stationed in Cleveland and was part of the Ohim ANG.

An unusually high percentage of Ohim ANG airmen and officers are either college graduates or have attended college. Among its men, the Ohio Air Guard lists engineers, attorneys, bankers, accountants, college professors, teachers, insurance agents, theater managers, a professional football player (Dick Schafrath, ex - Ohio State gridder now with the Cleveland Browns), newspaper-wire service-radio-TV newsmen, mailmen, and a variety of other occupations.

Seven Ohio-based Army Reserve units and one Army National Guard unit also were mobilized and will report Oct. 1. They are (with their mobilization stations in parentheses):

The 318th Signal Large Base Co., USAR, Dayton (Ft. Knox, Ky.); 196th Transportation terminal Service Co., USAR, Cleveland (Ft. Eustis, Va.); 983rd Engineer Construction Battalion, USAR, Bellaire (Ft. Meade, Md.); 350th Evacuation Hospital, USAR, Canton (Ft. Knox); 223rd Ordnance Park Co., USAR, Fremont (Ft. Campbell, Ky.); 350th Psychological Warfare Co., L&L, USAR, Cleveland (Ft. Bragg, N.C.); 348th Engineer Pipeline Co., USAR, Youngstown (Ft. Bragg); and the 357th Ordnance General Support Co., ARNG, Elyria (Ft. Knox).

2 Little Girls Killed In Burning Jet Crash

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Two little girls, 2 and 4 years old, lost their lives Friday when a burning Air Force jet fighter plane crashed in a residential area near Tinker Air Force Base.

The pilot of the plane tried unsuccessfully to land the craft.

Seven frame homes erupted in flames while residents on Ferguson Street in suburban Midwest City fled in confusion through falling debris.

Most made it to safety, but firemen found the body of Tibbie Tuttle, 2, inside the wreckage of her home.

Her sister, Judy, 4, died in Tinker AFB Hospital of burns. The children's mother and a brother, Donald Ray, 6, were hospitalized with burns. The father, Donald Tuttle, who was not at home at the time of the crash, was under treatment for shock.

van escaped injury, officers said, but both vehicles received extensive damage.

The Youngstown youth's motorbike was struck by a car driven by Arthur Boyd Conrad, 50, of 145 7th St., Columbiana, as the boy rode out of the driveway of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Gaskill. The boy's sister was killed last year in a road mishap.

He was pronounced dead at Salem City Hospital with skull injuries. The crash took place about 7 p.m. two miles south of Columbiana.

Mr. Eastham, employe of the Champion Works of the McClain Refractories Division, resided on McCormick Rd.

He was born in West Virginia March 10, 1922, a son of Mrs. Liddy Lancaster Eastham of Reeder, W. Va., and the late Charles Eastham. He had served two years in the Navy.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Dolly Eastham at home; his mother; six daughters, Bonnie Eastham, Loretta Eastham, Lydia Eastham, Karen Eastham and Cindy Eastham, all at home, and Betty of Jacksonburg, W. Va.; two sons, James Eastham of Wellsville and Mrs. Hazel Long of Reeder; seven brothers, Ira Eastham and James Eastham of Reeder, Lemon of Pine Grove, W. Va., Everett Eastham of East Liverpool R.D., Austin Eastham of Wellsville R.D., and Albert Eastham and Pete Eastham, both of New Salisbury.

Friends may call tonight at the Haugh Funeral Home at Wellsville.

Services will be held at Pine Grove with the Palmer Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Carrollton Woman Hurt In Rt. 30 Crash

Mrs. Katherine Allison, 58, of Carrollton is in "fair" condition today at City Hospital after a collision Friday at 2:40 p.m. at Laughlin Corners on Route 30, two miles south of Hookstown.

She received a possible fracture of the left hip, the Carnegie barracks of the Pennsylvania State Police reported. She was admitted at the hospital at 3:30 p.m.

Police reported Waclaw Pruchniewski, 70, of Weirton, headed north on Route 168, said he stopped at the intersection, saw no traffic and pulled onto Route 30, colliding with the Allison car headed west. He escaped injury. There was $300 damage to the Weirton car and $350 to the other.

to interfere with flights to West Berlin and voiced a "solemn warning" against any such "aggressive act" by the Communists.

More words were fired back and forth across the Iron Curtain.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk, writing in a foreword to a State Department booklet on Berlin, said: "For the third time in just over 13 years, the Soviets have launched a major threat to the freedom of West Berlin."

He voiced confidence that the United States, its Allies "and the stalwart people of West Berlin" will meet the Soviet challenge.

In Berlin, East Germany's chief of state, spade-beared Walter Ulbricht, declared Friday all Western "intervention" in the divided city must go and claimed the right to take control of the access routes—land, water and air—after Moscow signs a peace treaty with Communist East Germany.

The State Department has no comment on Ulbricht's remarks. U.S. officials consider him only a Moscow puppet.

The Western ambassadorial group which has been conferring in Washington on the Berlin crisis had little trouble agreeing on a firm stand in their new note to Moscow. But the Allies are having more difficulty thrashing out an answer to another Soviet note.

This Soviet document, dated Aug. 3, spoke of negotiations for peaceful settlement of the German issue but did not retreat from proposals the West deems unacceptable. The West's problem: Whether to enter into negotiations with the Communists soon or hold off for a while.

Srance's President Charles de Gaulle has let it be known he sees no good in rushing into negotiations—not so long as the Russians continue their Berlin threats and show no willingness to modify their position.

The United States, Britain and West Germany lean toward early negotiations. They feel too much delay could allow the crisis to grow beyond the chance of peaceful settlement.

Lisbon Man Sentenced

LISBON — Jack A. Warner, 38, of R.D. 1, was fined $150 and costs and sentenced to 3 days in jail Friday night by Mayor Dean Stockman for driving while intoxicated. He was cited by police after he sideswiped another car on N. Market St. Thursday evening.

Crisis Grips Brazil After Quadros Quits

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) —Brazil was plunged into a crisis by the sudden resignation of President Janio Quadros, with touring leftist Vice President Joao Goulart flying home today to take over power.

Supporters of Goulart, 43, threatened a general strike in the country already beset by financial troubles if any attempt is made to block him from taking over the presidency if he wants to—and an aide says he does.

Goulart, a wealthy rancher who heads Brazil's Labor party, is flying from Singapore after touring Red China, where he sang the praises of Mao Tze-tung and accomplishments under the Peiping regime.

Goulart favors the same foreign policy for Brazil that brought Quadros under attack—independent neutrality with friendship for all, including the Communist bloc.

The army and police kept a firm hold in the big country of 55 million, South America's largest, but factions were boiling up.

The resignation of the unpredictable Quadros Friday came with such suddenness it stunned the nation and plunged it into confusion over its future. Quitting a week short of seven turbulent months in office, Quadros declared: "I am beaten by forces against me." He accused forces inside and outside Brazil of fighting him but did not identify them.

Pro-Quadros student demonstrations erupted Friday night in at least three cities. A mob of 200 stone-hurling attackers smashed two windows and a front glass door of the U.S. Embassy in Brasilia, the capital, before militiamen drove them off with tear gas and rubber clubs.

Other students rioted in the Communist stronghold of Recife, port city on the Atlantic. In Rio de Janeiro, troops and police fired shots into the air and threw tear gas bombs to break up student demonstrators.

Quadros' resignation automatically dumped the presidency into Goulart's lap. But there was some speculation that Quadros, a shrewd politician with a flare for dramatics, had quit merely to gather more public support than he had for his landslide election victory last year. Then he got 4,300,000 votes—more than anyone in Brazilian history.

Since then his overtures to the Soviet Union and friendly gestures toward Fidel Castro's Cuba have stirred a growing revolt against him.

Growing economic distress in Brazil had contributed to the mounting opposition, with many of his supporters in the 1960 election campaign turning on him. Although favoring a policy that included accepting aid from the United States, Quadros went out of way to show friendship for Castro's Cuba and drew closer to the Soviet Union.

Quadros was about to resume diplomatic ties with the Soviet Union, broken in 1947, and opposed any U.S. attempts to put pressure on Cuba.

Quadros made his exit quietly and flew to his home city of Sao Paulo, where he got his start as a teacher and lawyer before entering politics.

The crisis broke within a week after the controversial visit to Brazil of Cuban economic czar Ernesto Guevara. Quadros received Guevara and decorated him with one of Brazil's highest honors.

A People's Life

GREAT BEND, Kan. (AP) — People used to lead a dog's life. Now one dog here is beginning to lead a people's life. Blitz, a pedigreed boxer, has been put on a milk diet to treat his ulcer. He even received a pint of blood from Mugs, a mixed boxer, when his ulcer hemorrhaged.

Train

the plant when the train hit the open switch — called Buckeye Switch — midway between the municipal power plant and the pottery.

The potters fled from the building when the car plunged through the wall, its wheels tearing open a water main outside the plant and narrowly missing a gas main.

The water main fed the pottery sprinkler system, and there was no flooding from a sprinkler although some water got into the building.

Pottery officials said the damage at the plant was not extensive.

A shifter locomotive earlier used the switch, railroad officials said.

The train was to have continued to a siding in the Alliance-Salem area to wait for an eastbound passenger train to go through. It was en route from Conway to Cleveland.

Most of the derailed cars were empties, piled three deep in some places and crumpled together from the momentum and the pressure of many hopper cars loaded with coal at the rear of the train. There were some "piggy back" flat cars carrying truck trailers at the rear of the train.

Two crewmen in the lead locomotive unit and one in the rear unit jumped to safety. They and two men in the caboose were shaken up but unhurt, a spokesman said.

Five cars were off the track at the pottery. Besides the one which hammered a hole in the wall, there were two leaning against the building and two more between the tracks and pottery.

Residents of the area said the derailment and piling up of cars lasted for minutes, the locomotives veering off the tracks, cars screeching along the rails and ties amid sparks and the movement of cars compressing together.

H. M. Phillips of Cleveland, regional manager for the railroad, and Joseph Bonelli of Canton, wreckmaster, were directing the cleanup.

Phillips said that over a mile of both east and west tracks are torn and twisted.

The remainder of the unwrecked cars stretched past the N. Market St. crossing, blocking it for a time, and almost to the James St. crossing. The N. Market St. crossing, blocked Sunday night, was opened later this morning.

Wreck trains were sent from Cleveland, Canton, Alliance, and New Castle and Conway, but the railroad didn't expect the tracks on the main line to be cleared before Sunday morning.

An alternate line was opened to handle trains from Canton to near Wellsville.

The untracking ripped up two different sections of track about an eighth of a mile apart, rails for both eastbound and westbound traffic.

Pact Accord Nearing For AMC, UAW

DETROIT, Mich. (AP) — An agreement between American Motors Corp. and the United Auto Workers called for the auto industry's first profit-sharing plan in history was believed near today.

All surface signs pointed toward an understanding, possibly by the weekend.

Top-level negotiators broke off marathon talks about 1 a.m. today in the drive to reach a settlement and stayed on call for later meetings.

Walter P. Reuther, UAW president, took a room overnight at the hotel where he and AMC Vice President Edward L. Cushman had worked late in an effort to resolve differences.

Neither side commented as to whether there had been further advances since AMC President George Romney's report of progress 24 hours earlier. However, principals in the talks were affable at the early hour recess.

At the same time both sides called in technical staffs for a meeting later this morning.

The Big Three car makers scheduled weekend bargaining sessions in the face of union threats of possible strike action. Their present contracts expire next Thursday night.

Foresters are planning to attach a tiny "peep-peep" radio transmitter to a porcupine to help them determine the range of the prickly little animal that causes great damage to trees.

Port Homer To Wellsville

5-Room House Trundled To New Location

The sign declares this section of Clark Ave. in Wellsville as a no passing zone, but in this case who but a cyclist could squeeze through the narrow opening anyway?

The five-room home of Robert J. Boley was trundled on rollers from Port Homer to 21st St. in a two-hour trip Friday afternoon.

The Broomhall Construction Co. of Salem made quick time of moving the house, breezeway and garage from its former site by following the stretch of four-lane super road to near its destination.

Boley, a Wellsville barber, purchased the home from Michael R. Urich of Toronto Rd., who was forced to re-locate because of the construction route for the next section of Route 7 highway along the Ohio River.

The home rested today on 21st St. after the moving firm maneuvered it around a tight turn off Clark Ave. It will be moved to its new site on Monday.

Traffic was re-routed by Wellsville police over Buckeye Ave. while the house moved slowly up Clark Ave. The only narrow squeeze the movers encountered in the trip was passing beneath a walkway over Route 7 at the McLain Fire Brick Co. division of the H. K. Porter Co. at the south end of the city.

Ohio Bell Telephone Co. employes were at the scene to assist in removing any low hanging wires. Boley had measured distances of obstacles along the route before the trip, however, and the move was made from nearby Jefferson County without incident.

Ohio's 37th Heads Home After Drills

CAMP GRAYLING, Mich. (AP) —Ohio's 37th Infantry Division headed home today, winding up one of the most enthusiastic summer training periods in the division's 44-year history.

Nearly 1,900 vehicles began pulling out of this north central Michigan camp about dawn, and the last units were scheduled to leave at 6 p.m.

All of the 8,000 national guardsmen should be home Sunday.

The final Army evaluation report brought smiles all over the division. Of the 102 units here, 53 were given over-all marks of superior—the highest grade possible. All of the other units had excellent ratings.

Col. William W. Rawlings, president of the evaluation board which rated the Ohioans, stated: "The enthusiasm of the division is as good as any I have ever seen. Its units have a good solid core of combat veterans and this is what it takes to make a fine reserve unit."

Friday the Buckeyes divided a payroll of about $860,000, and loaded trucks. One of the biggest chores of the day was taking down and storing nearly 2,500 tents, most of them as large as small buildings.

Is Moscow Rebuilding In Vain

To impress the world at large, Nikita Khrushchev is making like he is ready to go to war at any moment over Berlin.

Meanwhile, back at the Kremlin, he is making like he doesn't plan to go to war over anything until at least 1968.

This conclusion is prompted by a report in Business Week magazine on Moscow's big urban renewal project to spruce up communism's capital for the world's fair it plans in 1967.

Admitting now what others have been saying about Moscow for years — that it is a drab, outdated city with no style or spirit—the Communists have embarked upon an ambitious program to change its face.

It not only involves a block of new buildings for apartments, hotels and offices. It includes an expansion program to extend the city's traditional limits far beyond their present location, with new "model" suburban communities on the outskirts and American-type superhighways to provide better transportation.

The report points out that the materials and workmanship going into the new structures are down to the usual Russian pattern—the buildings begin to fall apart almost as soon as they are completed—but the attempt is being made.

And apparently it is being made with the sincere intention of holding the world's fair there in 1967.

Surely Mr. K knows that some of the Polaris missiles of the U.S. nuclear submarines are aimed at Moscow, and that just one of them could wipe it out, and that they would be fired if he started a world war.

Would he be going to all that trouble in Moscow if he planned to start one?

Use The Crosswalks

"Police said the mishap probably would have been avoided if the victim had crossed the street at the corner crosswalk."

This paragraph was taken from the story in Thursday's Review which told of the tragic traffic death of an East Liverpool woman on a street in Wellsville.

Crossing a busy thoroughfare even at a crosswalk has its dangers, but the danger becomes even greater when the crossing is made at any other spot.

There's another lesson to be learned from Thursday's fatality.

More Convenience—Where Possible

Contractors are generally well versed on methods of building and repairing highways.

Quite often, however, they are not so accomplished at providing safe passage of traffic through their project areas and occasionally require some suggestions from others interested not only in concrete and steel, but the human beings for whom the roads were designed.

Despite the size and number of earth-moving vehicles involved in the Freeway construction work, and the need to operate near and upon the four-lane Super Road and busy Route 30, motorists have found surprisingly little interference in travel at the sites.

Flag men, barriers and traffic signals have been utilized to protect vehicles and pedestrians to a great degree.

A contrast is the repair work being done on Route 30 in Beaver County where the roadway is being improved in several sections between Laughlins Corners and Hillendale.

The nature of the work is quite different in that the actual roadway has to be torn up and traffic in each lane blocked at some places.

But the work areas, in the opinion of many drivers, lack adequate warning notice and the whole project extends, in the opinion of some highway authorities, over too great a distance for such isolated and scattered surface replacement.

Pennsylvania highway officials would do well to study the repair procedures in this case, with an eye to limiting such hazards in future work and to making travel less inconvenient.

Not Too Late Yet

Summer, 1961, is drawing to a close, and those who have not yet had their full quota of seasonal pleasure — picnics, swimming, the ride through the country — had better be about it.

It won't be long until the first frost reports will be in from Fredericktown and the trees shortly will be bare and the ashing crews alerted.

Don't be among those who huddle around in mid-January wishing they had taken that Shippingport ferry ride, or gone on another wiener roast, or walked along Beaver Creek in the final weeks of summer.

It'll be too late then, pal; just grab the snow shovel.

Brinkmanship Is Here

As secretary of state, the late John Foster Dulles advocated the pursuance of two basic policies: military preparedness for "massive retaliation" and diplomatic preparedness to the point of brinkmanship.

At the time he presided over United States foreign policy, few people in this country questioned the wisdom of the first. It was based upon the ability of our superior nuclear equipment to devastate the home base of the Communist masters at the first evidence of overt aggression against us. It was implemented by letting the Communist masters know that was our intention.

But brinkmanship — the diplomatic device of pushing or pursuing the enemy to the brink of war before offering him a way out of the dilemma — did not go over as well. Indeed, when Mr. Dulles' advocacy of brinkmanship was first brought to public light under that title, it was pounced upon by a variety of forces, led by his political opposition — the Democrats — who now have the grim responsibility for conducting foreign affairs.

Although John Foster Dulles had a reputation for being an unbending conservative in dealing with the Russians, the critics of brinkmanship attacked it, paradoxically, on the ground that it was too radical and therefore too dangerous.

TIMES have changed.

The Kennedy administration has abandoned at least sole reliance on massive retaliation on the grounds that it is too inflexible in preparing militarily for the local, "brush-fire" wars that the Communists are fond of waging or inviting. The retaliatory policy — best evidenced in the ballistic missile submarines that are patrolling the world's oceans in increasing numbers — is retained only as a final-resort reserve if the "brush-fire" wars flare out of control.

And brinksmanship has become the order of the diplomatic day.

The only difference between the way it is pursued now and the way it was to have been pursued under Mr. Dulles' direction is that he would have taken the offensive in its use. Now, it is the Russians who are using it, and they are doing the pushing.

In other words, many of those who several years ago scored the advocacy of diplomatic brinkmanship by Mr. Dulles now find themselves engaged in it — against their wishes, to be sure, but engaged nevertheless.

PERHAPS that was something Mr. Dulles understood about dealing with the Communists. Perhaps he advocated brinkmanship simply because he knew there was no way to avoid it, and he preferred being on the pushing side, facing the brink, than on the pushed side, with his back to the brink.

To avoid oversimplifying the issue, it must be admitted that brinkmanship is easier for the Russians to pursue offensively because they know we will not be responsible for committing the first act of aggression.

We hope that, considering our retaliatory power, the Communists will not commit an act of aggression that would set off World War III, but we have had enough experience with the basic aggressiveness in their character that we cannot be as sure about them as they can be about us.

But the fact remains that the diplomatic situation in which the United States finds itself is one of brinksmanship, only we are on the less enviable side of it.

Maybe John Foster Dulles really was too radical when he advocated it — if radicalism means being ahead of one's time.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Two professional TV writers are to write program for Harry Truman airwave series, it is announced. Harry needs writers!! We predict more war outbreaks when writers and ex-President confer.

"We're here to write your TV stuff," we fancy the boys announcing.

"So I heard, but I thought it must be a rumor. What goes? Is this to be a comedy program?" asks Harry.

"You are, of course, to be yourself and do a public affairs program, but we can help you get the right approach for proper TV audience reaction," the writers explain.

"I never had to worry about audience reaction in my life. Not even on walks around the block did I need writers," Harry replies.

Writers: You will need some laughs.

Harry: Get Mort Sahl or Joey Bishop. I have done a lot for my country but I refuse to swell its list of comedians.

Writers: Your prestige and dignity will be respected. We just wish to help put you across.

Harry: If you think I need help to put me across, you had better consult Tom Dewey.

Writers: That was in an election to get custody of the White House. This is a show to get custody of America's TV rooms.

Harry: The Trumans have never ls a TV fight. Look at my daughter.

Writers: She had written material.

Harry: Without it she would have been better. Well, I'll give in and let you boys get in a few lines, but remember THEY'D BETTER BE GOOD.

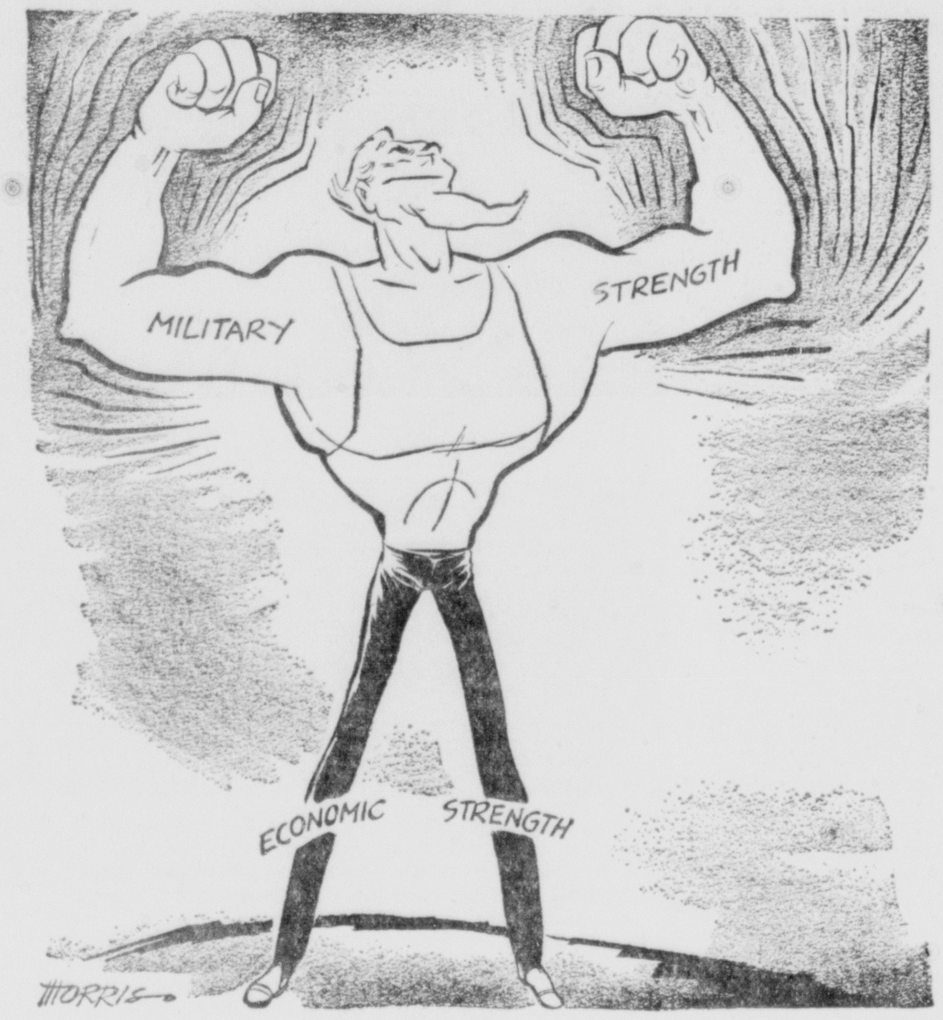

Writers: Okay. Hoover and Eisenhower had ghost writers, you know.

Harry: Why not? They're Republicans.

SIR CEDRIC HARDWICKE, planning new airwave series with Gertrude Berg, takes sock at TV and authors. "I find it very hard to find something funny on TV," he says. "Its comedy writers are a curse. The wisecrack has killed the great American clowns."

Now that we have dropped a Texan on the East German area, the crisis seems less disturbing.

Mustn't Neglect His Leg Work

Worker Loss Hurt Red Economy

By Victor Riesel

SOVIET SECTOR, BERLIN

Along with the heartaches I suffered here, I also got heartburn. For hours I wandered from "cafe" to "cafe" downing quarts of black coffee, which must have been dredged up from the river, and munching even blacker bread.

Victor Riesel

I wanted to talk to the people after the brick and barbed - wire wall went up. I did. They talked. One waitress, in the presence of five witnesses, removed a pin from her blouse and defiantly decorated me with it.

It was a gesture of good will, even if it was in the form of a hammer and sickle and an East German and Russian flag crossed under the legend of "Deutsche-Sowjet Freundshaft" (German-Soviet Friendship).

I learned more from the shut-in East Germans than I did from scores in the refugee camps. You learn that the westward flow of humanity, which N.S. Khrushchev has just dammed, is motivated far more by economics than politics.

YOU LEARN that about a million East Germans were on the march — not only to West Berlin and then by quota to the various German Federal Republic States, but then on to Italy, France, Austria, the Low Lands, Denmark and England.

The Soviet satellite peoples had heard what Americans back home don't quite realize. There is an enormous European prosperity fattening every corner of the continent as never before in history.

I can report this first hand. I have just swung back into Berlin from most of these lands.

There are at least 600,000 unfilled jobs right now in West Germany. The booming economy is fabulous. There is not even momentary joblessness.

Thus the Federal Labor Office in Nuremberg has stopped collecting unemployment insurance taxes. It has a reserve of $1.25 million because there are no jobless to collect it.

When I was over in Bonn I saw some characteristic figures on men's shirts bought in Germany. The Federal Republic consumes 17 million more shirts than England and 34 million more than France.

Unheard of two-car middle-class families are plentiful — with a Mercedes Benz for the husband and a small Volkswagen for the stay-at-home wife.

OBVIOUSLY the Soviets faced the greatest mass exodus in recent times — an economic surging through the formerly unplugged hole on the sector border. And after the 600,000 West German jobs would have been filled, the satellite people knew that there was high living for them, in Italy, for example.

When I was there recently, I learned that Milan firms are paying young Italian engineers from $1,000 to $1,400 a month. So prosperous is Italy that it needs some 6,000 such technicians, but it is training only 2,000 annually.

In Vienna, Copenhagen and London I heard the same lament—we need workers, there are more jobs than we can fill. In Vienna, I learned that anyone with any skill is moonlighting.

Had this exodus continued, Chairman Khrushchev's supply system would have collapsed. He is stripping everything he can for the Gagarin-Titov ventures in the sky.

HE NEEDS the production of East Germany as much as a Soviet state celebration needs a cellar full of vodka.

Just look at those industries which have been threatened with collapse. Gradually the steel and locomotive works just inside and alongside the Berlin-Sovzone border have not been able to produce on a full schedule for lack of skilled men.

Over in Zwickau the strain has been hitting the vital textile, auto and machine-building factories.

At Halle-Saale, the Walter Ulbricht Works — the biggest industrial and military chemical and munitions works in East Germany —were slowing down despite the august name.

Near Leipzig, manpower shortage was cutting the open-pit mining of soft coal — East Germany's biggest fuel supply.

N. S. Khrushchev was considerably worried, according to reports, over what was happening to the Neptune Shipyards at Rostock — key shipbuilding center.

The crucial Jena optical (commercial) lens, microscope and other strategic material operations have been hit. So were the railroads, the quality steel plants, the vital electronics producers.

They just couldn't hold their manpower as long as the young and middle-aged men could simply walk west into prosperity.

There isn't anyone who really knows what Khrushchev thinks. But one thing is certain. He wanted to plug that Berlin hole before the "refugees" kicked holes in his economy with their walking feet.

The Unthinkable

By Robert C. Toth

James Henry, an average-looking man, each morning leaves his wife, three youngsters and an unfinished radiation shelter at his home in suburban Bethesda, Md., to think about the unthinkable.

In one of the countless rooms of the Pentagon he counts up how many Americans will die if nuclear war comes.

He seeks to emphasize the positive: How many can be saved through a Civil Defense program. But calculating the number who would die—80 million to 100 million—is part of that job.

"There's no difference between it and figuring out actuarial tables in a life insurance office. the 30-year-old engineer says.

As for building a home shelter, he has an equally simple explanation: "I'd feel awfully foolish dying when I didn't have to die."

MR. HENRY began turning over dirt for the shelter in his back yard a couple of months ago, shortly before he was temporarily transferred from an Army Air Defense research job at Johns Hopkins University to the Defense Secretary's office.

His work on the nation's Civil Defense program, usually into the night, has kept the shelter unfinished.

That $207 million program will search out public buildings which can be used as shelters, either in their present state or after modifications. These will be stocked with food, water and medicines — aspirins but no tranquilizers—for two weeks.

Some Americans are equipping their private shelters with guns to fight off neighbors who may want to get in if war comes. One Chicago suburbanite is reportedly planning to mount a machine gun at the hatch.

Public shelters will not store any weapons, of course, (nor will Mr. Henry's private one.) But the government is afraid this may be a real problem.

"What do you do when the 101st person tries to get into a shelter limited to 100?" Mr. Henry asked.

"Naturally you'll let him in. But the real solution is to reduce the probability that this will happen. You build enough shelters," he said.

"ENOUGH" is room for 50 million Americans, or one-quarter of the total population of the United States.

"I'm reminded of the fable of the grasshopper and the ant," he added. "The grasshopper had a ball all summer while the ant prepared for winter, building his mound and putting in food against the storms. When the first winds began to howl, the grasshopper began to panic.

"What'll I do?" asked the grasshopper. The ant pondered the question for a while before answering.

"I guess you'll have to turn yourself into an ant," he said.

The Defense Department wants Americans to start thinking about being ants before winter comes.

Through The Years

THIRTY YEARS AGO — Frank Abbey of Niagara Falls arrived to begin his duties as athletic coach at Wellsville High School.

Mrs. Charles Stewart was elected president of the Fern LEAF Club.

Employes of The Review held a corn roast at Peace Valley Park, Negley, with Henry Herman as chairman.

TWENTY YEARS AGO — Honoring their retiring teacher, Miss Edna H. Simms, the Young Ladies' Bible Class of the First Presbyterian Church held a dinner in the church.

The Kirkbride family held its first annual reunion at Chettle's Lake on the Salineville Rd.

The Mellodettes, a local musical group directed by Miss Ethel Peterson, sang over a Wheeling radio station.

TEN YEARS AGO — Seventy-one descendants of Phillip and Cynthia Garey held their first annual reunion at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Garey on the Fredericktown-Negley Rd.

Donald Dunlap was named president of the Chester Flower and Garden Club.

Mrs. Gertrude Ludovici was received as a new member of the Triple Two Club of Chester when it met at the home of Mrs. Ada Erlitz of Phoenix Ave.

There is a point in the human eye known familiarly as "the blind spot," from which a person cannot see. It is where the optic nerves enter the retina, and where there are almost no sensitive cells. Under normal vision, this does not affect a person, but it may be made apparent when looking at certain objects in a certain way.

The fuzzy part of a pussy willow is not a blossom, but a catkin from which the outer scales have fallen. The true flowers are very small and of a yellowish color. They come later.

World Brotherhood

By David Lawrence

U.S. Overlooks International Church Link

One of the most effective instruments for the spread of America's ideals and its concepts of human brotherhood throughout the world is not being utilized by the United States government. There is plenty of emphasis on "cultural exchange" in the arts, music and drama, and lots of talk about the need for technical and educational help to be furnished by the new peace corps project. But there is a tendency to overlook a powerful institution in the world today — the churches and religious organizations.

David Lawrence

The contact between the American government and the Roman Catholic headquarters in the Vatican is tenuous. There is little contact with the high-ranking ministers of the Church of England. There is little contact with the high churchmen of the Asian religions.

The other day, the correspondent in Rome of the London Daily Telegraph wrote to his paper that an attempt may be made soon to initiate diplomatic relations between the United States and the Vatican.

This probably is a mistaken report and the speculation may have arisen from the fact that Cardinal Cicognani, the newly appointed papal secretary of state, is well acquainted in Washington, where he served 25 years — from 1933 to 1958 — as the apostolic delegate to the Catholic clergy in America.

FROM 1939 TO 1950, Presidents Roosevelt and Truman maintained an unofficial representative—Myron C. Taylor—at the Vatican.

These relationships were especially valuable during the war and postwar periods and were thereafter lost in a controversy that arose when President Truman recommended establishment of formal diplomatic relations with the Vatican, and Congress refused to approve.

Since that time, the contact between the American government and the Vatican has been confined to a few visits by dignitaries on both sides. Yet the Roman Catholic Church has tremendous influence in every country in Latin America — each of which is predominantly Catholic in its religious affiliation — as well as in France, Austria, Germany, Spain and Italy.

The Vatican could do more to help the Alliance for Progress to succeed in Latin America than any other single aily.

WHAT IS NEEDED is a special organization in the United States government devoted entirely to contacts with all national church and religious groups, both inside and outside the United States.

A special representative should be sent to Britain to maintain regular contacts with the clergy in the Church of England and with other Protestant church groups.

Another envoy should be sent to Rome as a contact with the Roman Catholic Church.

Other representatives of the United States government should go on similar missions to the centers of the Middle Eastern and Asian religions.

What could these American representatives do? Nearly every one of the big churches has a vast personnel of missionaries who serve all around the globe—Africa, Asia, South America. They are in close contact with the peoples of those continents. They not only can transmit information but they can gather it.

SOMETIMES the church organizations get a misconception of American purposes and policies, and their representatives repeat such misconceptions, not necessarily in the pulpits but in their informal relationships with local leaders of thought.

It is vital to the whole communication policy of the United States that a means of briefing the principal church leaders of the world should be set up by the United States government—just as it spends a lot of time and money in contacting the press and movie people of various countries, as well as other organizations included in the objectives of our "cultural exchange" programs.

A few days ago President Kennedy and other high officials of the government in Washington thought it important enough to give several hours of their time privately to brief 700 newspaper and radio editors from all parts of the United States on the background of our foreign policy problems.

It is just as important regularly to give basic explanations, for instance, to certain people in the Anglican Church in England and the Roman Catholic Church in Rome and to some of the leaders of the various Hebrew theological seminaries in different parts of the world, as well as to the leading personalities in the religious groups of Asia, where the Moslem and other religions penetrate the hearts and minds of tens of millions of human beings for they ought to be informed of American purposes in the world today.

The United States should neglect no means of communication, formal or informal, which seeks earnestly and sincerely "to win friends and influence people."

Three Year Warning

By Warren Rogers Jr.

The Allies knew three years ago that the Communists had cooked up an "Operation Chinese Wall" to seal off the flow of refugees from East Berlin.

Yet, when it was put into effect Aug. 13, there was no agreed-upon plan or counter-measure ready to meet it. Instead, it took the Allies three days to respond, and then only with a mildly worded protest — indicating they did not agree on a reaction to that particular Communist move until it was actually made.

Diplomatic informants said this is how the Allies knew the Communists had thought of barricading the Berlin dividing line:

IN JULY, 1958, about the time of the Lebanon crisis, an obscure East German government functionary defected to West Berlin.

He had been an official in an East German state government. As a kind of passport to freedom, he brought with him a document —the usual thing in such defections.

The document became known to American and West German intelligence agents as the plan for "Operation Chinese Wall." It resembled closely the swiftly executed plan put into effect by East Germany to stop the refugee flow.

The plan had three stages: First, the erection of a barbed wire barrier along the 25-mile-East - West Berlin boundary; second, replacing the barbed wire with a cement-block fence; finally, the building of what were called "palisades."

The East Germans put up a barbed wire fence during Aug. 13-14. When the Allies did not tear it down, the East Germans began replacing it with cement-block fencing.

If the 1958 plan is being followed, a more substantial wall, or palisade, will be next.

MAYOR WILLY BRANDT of West Berlin turned the document over to his intelligence experts in 1958. In typically thorough German fashion, the experts reckoned how much manpower, barbed wire and cement blocks it would take, and whether the East Germans could meet the demand. Their finding, after months of study, was that it could be done.

But "Operation Chinese Wall" was not accorded too much weight on two major grounds: The first was that the defector had reported the Soviets vetoed the plan. The second was that Mayor Brandt and his top advisers felt it would violate the American - British-French - Russian occupation agreement (guaranteeing freedom of movement among Berlin's sectors) and the Allies would never allow that to go unchallenged.

The Communists did not try "Operation Chinese Wall" in the 1958-'59 Berlin crisis. But they did this time, and with complete success.

At the Brandenburg Gate, once the chief crossing point, a loudspeaker blared at visiting Chancellor Konrad Adenauer Tuesday:

"We acted but you did nothing."

Odd Facts

The average American man today, according to one recent survey, tips the scales at three to five pounds more than he did 30 years ago. On the other hand, the ever-slimming American female now weighs between one and five pounds less than did her counterpart of 1930.

Centuries ago, Germans caught using loaded dice had their throwing hands cut off by indignant sportsmen. And if the culprit ever gambled again — even with honest dice — the other hand was lopped off.

Lisbon's Schools Expect 1,540 In Classes Sept. 6

LISBON — Approximately 1,540 pupils are expected in Lisbon schools Sept. 6 for the 1961-62 term, according to Supt. Russel Armitage.

Some 416 students are anticipated in high school with 159 freshmen registered — the largest class in the school's history; 93 sophomores, 86 juniors and 78 seniors.

The eighth grade for the last five years has been in the high school but it is being moved to the Lincoln School.

Two overflow classes will be housed in private buildings. A third grade will be housed at the St. George Parish Hall and a fourth grade at the American Legion home, due to the shortage of classrooms. The Board of Education submitted a $350,000 bond issue in May but it failed, making two outside classes necessary for this term.

All teachers have their contracts and will meet Sept. 5 with the first full day for students Sept. 6.

Students will get their first day of vacation on Friday, Oct. 27, because of the annual meeting of the East-Central Ohio Teachers Association.

There will be no school on Wednesday, Nov. 15, for youngsters in Grades 1, 2 and 3 because of parent-teacher conferences.

Students will be off Thursday and Friday, Nov. 23-24, for Thanksgiving and the schools will close Dec. 22 for the Christmas vacation with pupils due to report back Jan. 2.

Another one-day vacation will be Feb. 23, when four school systems — Lisbon, East Palestine, Leetonia and Columbiana — hold a workshop. Spring vacation will be March 16, resuming March 26.

There will be no school on Good Friday or Memorial Day and classes will end June 7.

Bus routes will remain about the same and the schools will operate on Daylight Saving Time until the town changes over in October.

Grades 1 through 6 will begin at 8:55 a.m. and dismiss at 2:30 p.m. every Monday and at 3 p.m. remainder of the week. Grades 7 and 8 — 8:20 a.m. and 3 p.m. dismissal on Mondays and 3:30 p.m. other days.

High school — 8:10 a.m. and dismiss at 3:15 on Mondays and 3:45 p.m. other days.

Kindergarten — 9 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m.

The band room was redecorated and a new home economics room was provided as major projects during the summer.

Land Owner Sues County On Pollution

LISBON — A suit for $10,000 damages and a petition to enjoin further pollution was filed against the county in Common Pleas Court Friday by W. J. Seiter of East Palestine R.D. 1.

County commissioners, Walter A. Hunston, Galen Greenisen and Frank Wilson, were named defendants.

Seiter claims that for 23 years raw sewage has been contaminating a stream that runs through his farm land. He said the sewage comes from the James A. Rogers addition in Unity Township outside of East Palestine. During high water, the condition pollutes his land and causes severe damages, he claims and he asks the court to enjoin commissioners from allowing the sewage to be dumped into the stream.

Unpredictable Ex-President

Dozen Nagging Problems Forced Quadros To Quit

Janio Quadros is an unpredictable but shrewd politician. Tom Masterson, AP bureau chief in Brazil, got a good insight into Quadros' maneuverings in covering his rise to the presidency and after taking over. Here's his view of why the man even Brazilians profess not to understand quit.

By TOM MASTERSON

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) —A Brazilian standing on a Rio de Janiero street corner just two hours before Janio Quadros resigned as president was shouting.

"Give Janio a chance!" he cried. "We Brazilians vote for a man. Then as soon as he gets into power, we start knocking him down."

His remark explained—perhaps even more than Quadros' own resignation statement—why Quadros resigned after only seven months in office.

It is now clear Quadros quit because his back was to the wall.

To Quadros the future looked bleak. Obviously he saw no immediate prospect of fulfilling his promise to lift Brazil out of financial chaos and make it a world power with a strong voice in the international struggle.

Many political experts say it was Quadros' own fault that he appeared headed for failure. He had promised too much; he had tried to do too much too fast.

Right or wrong, it also is clear Brazilians themselves were partly at fault—just as the man standing on the street corner said.

To easy-going Brazilians Quadros' tough and demanding tactics brought only resentment. Even his own men began dragging their feet. Some of his staunchest supporters turned violently against him.

Faced with the stark fact that the national coffers were empty, that the government was heavily in debt and couldn't get foreign aid fast enough to keep his promises, Quadros gave in.

This was only one of a dozen nagging problems Quadros faced and finally came to realize he could not cope with.

For Brazil, Quadros resignation solves nothing. The problems still exist, and his successor will inherit them.

Admission of a tuberculosis patient to the Ohio State TB Hospital in Columbus was approved.

Trial Of Driver Reset Sept. 18

A Municipal Court jury trial for a city motorist accused of driving while intoxicated has been reset from Tuesday to Sept. 18, court officials said today.

The continuance in the trial of Paul Victor Dawson, 1948 Dresden Ave. Ext., cited after his car struck a big earth hauler Aug. 9 at a freeway construction crossing just north of the city limits, was requested by the State Highway Patrol which said the arresting officer, Patrolman N. K. Myers, will be on vacation until after Labor Day.

Dawson pleaded innocent to the patrol charge when arraigned Aug. 15 before Judge Samuel M. Chertoff and his counsel, Atty. George Aronson, filed a motion for the jury trial.

The patrol cited Dawson after his southbound car struck the earth hauler of Chapin & Chapin, Inc, of Norwalk at the construction crossing, injuring the motorist's wife and demolishing his car.

VA Issues Reminder On Loan Extension

The regional Veterans Administration reminded today that a bill signed by the President extends the deadline for G.I. loans.

Veterans will be eligible for 10 years from discharge or release from the last period of wartime service plus an additional year of eligibility for each three months of active wartime service.

World War II veterans eligibility will not terminate in any case prior to July 25, 1962. Maximum eligibility for these benefits will not extend beyond July 25, 1967, for World War II. Corresponding dates of Korean Conflict veterans are Jan 31, 1965, and Jan. 31, 1975, respectively. The time for use of restored entitlement by World War II veterans now is July 25, 1967; for Korean veterans, terminal date is Jan. 31, 1975.

The maximum amount of a direct loan is increased from $13,500 to $15,000.

Homecoming To See Work On Addition

Inspection of blueprints and of the basement addition will feature the annual homecoming of the Service United Presbyterian Church Sunday.

The day's program provides a Bible study hour from 11 to noon, conducted by Dr. George Swetnam, pastor, followed by a basket lunch in the churchyard, with tables, chairs and drinking water provided by the church.

The Rev. James Adair of the Ohio United Presbyterian Church at Aliquippa will preach at the worship service at 2:30 p. m. with Dr. Swetnam assisting.

The collection, which usually goes to maintenance of the cemetery, will be added to the building fund.

Plans for the 32-x-76-foot addition to the present chapel have been prepared by J. B. McCandless, Ellwood City architect, and will be on display. Excavation has been made and masonry work is about to begin. The first phase of the building program calls for covering the basement and equipping a kitchen, social hall and Christian education facilities. Financing and construction of the upper portion will come later.

During the week, men and women of the congregation have been working under the guidance of Harry Hall, homecoming chairman, at mowing the cemetery and churchyard, cleaning, painting and other preparations for this ancient church's annual day of hospitality and memories.

It is Beaver County's oldest. First worship service was conducted here in 1779 by a pioneer circuit rider, the Rev. James Proudfoot. Here in 1794 the first pastor, Dr. John Anderson, founded what is now the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary. During the second quarter century the 600-seat sanctuary burned and the present chapel was built of brick salvaged from the rubble. Membership, however, had dwindled almost to the vanishing point.

Under the pastorate of historian and newspaperman Swetnam, however, 70-member congregation said in a recent church bulletin that this "church which refused to die" is now rebuilding itself "in numbers, in bricks and mortar, and in service to the Master."

The Power Of Faith

by Howard Brodie

PROPHETS and TEACHERS—4

"In him we live and move and have our being."

St. Paul's faith, expressed in these words, gave him the courage to withstand danger, the practicality to aid the poor and the spirituality to inspire.

"If I speak in the tongues of men and angels, but have not love, I am a noisy gong," he said. "Love is patient and kind . . . Love bears all things . . . hopes all things, endures all things . . . Love never ends . . . So faith, hope and love abide, these three, but the greatest of these is love."

Deferment Denied 1 Of Peace Corps

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A Miami draft board has refused to defer a member of President Kennedy's Peace Corps and said he should be taught Americanism rather than teach it.

Local Board 46 voted unanimously Friday to refuse deferment to Charles Kamen, 21, and declared, also by unanimous vote, that Kamen would be better off in service where he would be taught Americanism rather than in the Peace Corps where he would teach it.

Roy Lee Jones, draft board chairman and an assistant state's attorney, reported the action and said refusal of deferment will keep Kamen out of the Peace Corps but he probably will not be drafted immediately.

Kamen has been in the news since Dec. 29, 1960, when he heckled the showing of the film, "Operation Abolition," at a Miami Rotary Club meeting.

Kamen is in training at Penn State University for a teaching assignment in the Philippines and could not be reached for comment.

Dusty Mess Seen Top Problem In Moon Landing

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A dusty mess, several inches thick, will be one of man's major problems when he lands on the moon.

Dr. Roy G. Brereton, a space-age planner for Aerojet - General Corp., explains the mess is an accumulation of stardust which has fallen on the moon for millions of years. He says a space ship's engines could kick it up into a blackout dust storm; it could gum up the ship and its equipment, and it could present very hazardous footing.

Brereton estimates about five million tons of this same stardust falls on earth every year. Good housekeepers, who know it as common dust, brush and vacuum it from rugs, shelves and other places. Nature also helps dispose of it — with rain, wind and waves mixing it in with the normal earth and rock.

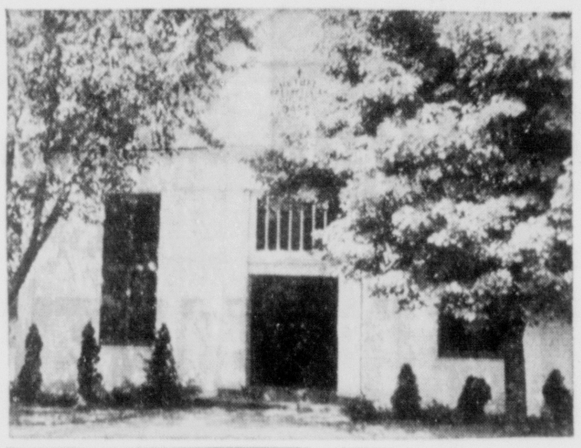

But the man in the moon has no housekeeper. And the lunar surface has no rain, wind or waves to help get rid of the dust.

3 Lawyers Arrested In Bid To Bribe Income Tax Agent

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Justice Department announced today the arrest in Boston of three lawyers on charges of trying to bribe an Internal Revenue Service official.

The idea of the alleged bribe offer, according to the department, was to induce the revenue man not to prosecute one of the lawyers on income-tax-evasion charges.

The three were taken into custody after a 10-week investigation in which the revenue agent, Charles J. McCaffrey, pretended to go along with the alleged $10,000 offer.

The trio was identified as Nathaniel Bergman, 53, of Hartford, Conn., and Saul Glassman, 45, and Paul Gorin, 49, of Boston.

Glassman was arrested this morning as he left his apartment house in Boston. Gorin and Bergman were taken into custody as they entered an office building at 80 Federal Street where McCaffrey's office is located.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy gave this sequence of events leading up to the arrest of the three men:

McCaffrey, 47, a $12,200 assistant regional counsel of the revenue service in Boston, told his superiors early in June that he had been approached by Glassman.

Hospital Ship Sailing For U.S.

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The American hospital ship Hope is sailing for home after six months in Southeast Asia.

Dr. William Walsh, Washington heart specialist who heads the People to People Health Foundation sponsoring the big white vessel, says: "Both Indonesia and South Viet Nam have asked us to come back. That is the most encouraging thing about our work."

He also has invitations from South Korea, Pakistan, and several South American countries.

How far the Hope will sail again after reaching San Francisco depends on money. A drive this fall will seek $10 million—enough to finance two additional Hope ships Walsh wants.

The present 15,000-ton Hope costs about $153,000 a month, or over $1.8 million a year to operate, Walsh says. A big part of this is crew wages.

Florida Man Grows Giant Vegetables

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Imagine cabbage heads big as half bushel baskets; okra pods as big around as broom handles; bean pods two feet long.

Such gigantic vegetables are grown on a 60-acre farm here by Jim Wing. He sends them by air express to Chinese customers in New York, Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia.

These are real Chinese vegetables which are naturally much bigger than American truck crops, Wing says.

The 71-year-old native of China has been growing them 15 years for Oriental epicures in the northern cities.

Florida's Seminoles Are Making Progress

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida's Seminoles have advanced so far along the progress trail that the state is eliminating its office of Indian affairs.

"Ninety-eight per cent of the Seminoles are now in the public schools and they have made great advancement in many fields," says Gov. Farris Bryant.

Some folks talk as though they want life to be a downhill race without obstacles.

But God, who made man in His own image, never meant it to be so. For the muscle becomes helpless which is never tensed; the mind grows dull which is never challenged. There is no courage without threat of battle.

This life was meant to be a succession of goals . . . each the more inspiring because of the hazards along the way. And who among us, worth his salt, would want a life any different?

It is the uphill, the hazardous, course of courageous living that makes spiritual strength a must. You and I need the Church. We need the Church because we see divine as well as human purpose in our existence.

Life—as we like it—gains deeper meaning with each new discovery of our need of God.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

A Loving Tribute, "Before the Need"

GRAHAM AND WAGNER

THE ERECTION of a family Memorial "before the need," expresses a sincere and deep love . . . gives a feeling of worth . . . a value beyond price. It is only natural that forward-thinking individuals would join the many others who have selected Graham and Wagner Monuments. A loving tribute carved in stone for later generations to see. Why not select your Graham and Wagner Monument now? It will translate your sentiment into lasting form at a surprisingly low price.

Mr., Mrs. John Pickering Are At Home In Wellsville

Mr. and Mrs. John Pickering have returned from a honeymoon at Lake Erie and are residing at 1214 Commerce St., Wellsville, following their marriage Aug. 5 at the Immaculate Conception Catholic Church of Wellsville.

The bride was Miss Frances Amato, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Amato, 1227 Commerce St., and her husband's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Pickering, 433 W. 4th St.

Fr. Anthony Esposito, assistant pastor of St. Aloysius Catholic Church of East Liverpool, officiated for the 11 o'clock Nuptial High Mass and double-ring ceremony. The altar was banked with white chrysanthemums and gladiolus and fernery. Satin bows marked the family pews.

Miss Jackie Urso sang "On This Day Oh Beautiful Mother" as the bride placed a bouquet of white roses and carnations before the statue of the Blessed Virgin, and "Ava Maria." Mrs. John Nuzzo of Midland Heights was organist.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She wore a floor-length gown of hand-clipped Chantilly lace and tulle over taffeta. A scalloped Sabrina neckline outlined with sequins and seed pearls, and long, pointed sleeves highlighted the Basque bodice. The bouffant skirt was designed with lace appliqued tulle inserts in the front. Tiers of tulle and lace formed the chapel train.

A queen's crown held her fingertip veil of French illusion. She carried a white Bible, the gift of the bridegroom. It was topped with two white orchids, stephanotis and satin streamers. All the traditions were observed.

Miss Nora Amato was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Mary Amato, another sister; Miss Margaret DeFilippo of Yorkville, her cousin, and Miss Norma Pickering, sister of the bridegroom.

They wore identical ballerina-length gowns of orchid silk organza over taffeta. The fitted bodices were fashioned with scoop necklines and brief sleeves. Deep pleats accentuated the hemlines of the full skirts.

Matching organza flower petal headpieces, with theater veils, completed their costumes. They carried cascade bouquets of white carnations tipped in orchid. Gifts of the bride were pearl-centered silver cross necklaces with matching earrings.

Annette Amato and Joyce Pickering, nieces of the couple, were flower girls. They wore white silk organza dresses with orchid cummerbunds and headpieces. Their baskets were filled with rose petals and trimmed with orchid streamers. They received silver crosses from the bride.

MRS. JOHN PICKERING
She Was Frances Amato.

Robert Pickering served as his brother's best man. Ushers were Donald Pickering, another brother, Homer Dray and Jay Moss. Initialed tie bars were gifts of the bridegroom.

The mother of the bride chose a poudre blue lace dress with Navy accessories. A pink dress with black accessories was worn by the bridegroom's mother. White carnation corsages complemented their attire.

A dinner for 85 was served by members of the Altar and Rosary Society in the Parochial School hall. The reception was held in the evening at the Knights of Columbus Hall in East Liverpool.

Other out-of-town guests were from Salem, Tiltonsville, Wheeling, Charleroi and New York.

For traveling, the bride wore a green ensemble with matching accessories and her bridal orchids.

The bride was graduated from Wellsville High School and the City Hospital School of Nursing. She remained on the staff of the hospital.

Her husband is a graduate of East Liverpool High School and the Carnegie Laboratory Technician's School of Pittsburgh. He is employed at City Hospital.

Confident Living

By Norman Vincent Peale

Take It As It Comes

High up on the shoulder of a great Alpine ridge called the Burgenstock, which rises precipitously from the blue waters of Lake Lucerne, there is a hotel and a number of chalet-type cottages nestling in the crannies of the mountainside round about it. From here — in clear weather — you can see on one side the lake far below and the countless villages dotting the green hills surrounding it; on the other side, the little mountain valley of Obergen, from which comes always a faint tinkling of cowbells, and beyond a magnificent panorama of lofty snow-capped peaks. Summer in the Alps, however, is no unbroken stretch of balmy weather. Spells of mist and fog and chilly rain alternate with periods of sunshine. The weather is highly unpredictable, a creature of ever changing moods.

DR. PEALE

One evening several years ago I was sitting on the hotel porch with Earl Warren, chief justice of the United States Supreme Court. A woman announced to us that she had decided to leave because there was so much rain and fog.

The chief justice said to her, "Madam, you must remember you came here for the mountains, and you have to take them as they come. It is in the nature of these mountains that they are wrapped in mist and rain a lot of the time. But it is also in their nature to be bathed with light when you least expect it."

THE SAME words fit the nature of human life. For each of us there is constant interplay of light and darkness, smiles and tears, joy and sorrow; a mixture of bitter and sweet, of pain and delight. We have to take it as it comes. As Charles Dickens says: "A man must take the fat with the lean."

A woman who had been through a series of misfortunes told me: "I have had the uplifting experience of learning how to regenerate my spirits when the wear and tear of a storm has passed. When we reflect upon life we see it is a series of calms and storms and it is important to know how to use both phases and balance our personalities accordingly."

Another lady, to whom I am indebted for a truly inspiring letter, was startled when a friend of hers remarked that everybody suffers from depression at times and the way we handle it determines the course of our lives. She was startled because she too had noticed in her life that after each depression there came a new step forward.

An important circumstance in this lady's life is that she is totally blind, although there was a time when she had normal sight. She explains, however, that her depressions do not come because of her blindness, which she says has actually been a great help to her "in ways of peace." They come because of the incurable illness of a son.

RECENTLY SHE had this wonderful experience: "In a blessed and unexpected moment I had a vision of the ocean heaving in great waves, with the spray from the top of one great wave dancing high in the sunshine. Just beyond came the deep, deep trough and great darkness. I was told spiritually that these dark moments must be taken with great patience and are rest periods. Now I understand why the step forward follows them. I am sure Isaiah and Elijah and others in the Bible had moments of deep depletion followed by next steps forward."

Very rare and very precious are those moments of sudden insight when the soul rises momentarily to a perspective that embraces the storm with the calm, the marking time with the advancing, the darkness with the light, and thrills to the grandeur and goodness of the life process that includes them all.

But we always can be gaining in understanding and in peace. They come to us increasingly as we practice cheerfulness and patience when things are dark, reminding ourselves that after every dark time there is a re-emergence into light.

Youngster's I.Q. Rating Isn't A Cause For Panic

NEW YORK (AP) — If your child's first I.Q. score is diapppointingly low, don't take it too seriously.

He may have been tired, or bored, or scared, or just confused by the unfamiliar look of the test questions.

On future tests, he's likely to do better, if you as a parent don't make a production out of his score.

An authority in the testing field, Prof. Elizabeth Hagen of Teachers College, explains that the I.Q. test is only one gauge of a child's brain power.

Instead of measuring total intelligence — which she says no one test can possibly do — it indicates scholastic ability only, and as such is a helpful guide in planning a child's academic work.

But early test scores may give a false picture of the child's ability. Some children get into an emotional dither over any exam and can't do their best. A calm, cool approach by the parent is a positive help to such a child, so he won't tense up at testing time.

Other children are thrown by the mechanics of their first test, find it hard to understand directions, stop and start, and wind up with an invalid score because of their confusion.

The slow reader is handicapped too, since tests are predicated on reading ability. Give him some remedial reading help and next time he will forge ahead to a more realistic score.

Prof. Hagan feels some children are tested much too early in their school careers. Often it's the over-anxious parent who pressures the kindergarten teacher into giving an I. Q. test.

The educator throws cold water on that idea, saying children at that age are much too young and have far too limited a concentration span to have the test mean anything.

She recommends waiting until the fourth grade when the tests will have more significance and won't shatter the child because by then he has acquired basic verbal and mathematical skills.

Can a child raise his I. Q. level: Prof. Hagan says no. He can raise his score when he's more at ease with the test; but that doesn't mean his intelligence has increased. It merely shows the test is making contact with the child's ability, and his scores now more nearly match up with his brain power.

To obtain a full picture of a child's intelligence calls for continued observation of him in many situations, rather than depending on one test for all the answers.

Parents should be alert to the child's motivation, his adjustment to new experiences, his flexibility, his creativity. And they shouldn't hesitate to relay their observations to his teacher so she too will be informed.

Beautification Unit Shrinks In Florida

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The Miami City Commission decided a while ago it should have a municipal beautification committee. Twenty-five members seemed like a good number.

But word got around and it seemed that everyone wanted to belong. Request after request was granted and finally 131 citizens were appointed.

Then the committee had a meeting. Nineteen members showed up.

Successor Wanted

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — When the Ohio State Medical Board needed a secretary, Dr. H. M. Platter agreed to try the job for a while. Now he figures it's someone else's turn. The tryout period has lasted almost 44 years, and the doctor says: "I've been here so long it's time someone else found out about medical licensing."

He's 92.

LISBON — Six motorists were fined a total of $125 and costs Friday by County Judge James L. MacDonald. Another was given a suspended fine and two forfeited.

British Premier Discounts War In Berlin Crisis

GLENEAGLES, Scotland (AP) —Prime Minister Harold Macmillan calmly played a round of golf on the famed King's Course today. On the 18th fairway he told newsmen that he didn't think there would be a war over Berlin.

The British leader, clad in a fawn jerkin, plus fours and a tweed cap, said, "I think the way it is going is very worrying—but nothing more."

Macmillan held up his golf club and broke up the impromptu news conference by saying with a smile, "Mr. Khrushchev is playing golf in the Crimea. Perhaps that is rather encouraging."

The prime minister said there had been no new development of sufficient importance to take him back to London.

A group of experts are working on the problem in Washington, he said, and everything "is going on fairly smoothly."

The prime minister was asked if the Berlin situation, where guns are facing guns over the Red-barricaded city borders, did not frighten him.

"I think it is all got up by the press," he said. "Nobody is going to fight about it."

120,000 Attend Opening Day

Ohio Fair Fetes Newsmen

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—This is Press Day at the Ohio State Fair, honoring the men and women of the news media who publicize the annual exposition.

Friday, when the fair opened its gates for an eight-day run, a crowd of 120,000 persons strolled through the grounds, according to an estimate by Everett J. Palmer, head gateman.

Palmer, who has been working the gates since 1931, said it was the best Youth Day he could remember with the possible exception of 1956 when cowboy Roy Rogers was on hand.

Everybody under 18 was admitted free on Youth Day, so paid attendance was only 12,396. But that was still 3,053 more than on opening day last year.

On tap today were various livestock judging events, demonstrations by 4-H and FFA club members and the Campfire Girls, selection of an FFA queen, a horse show, the grandstand show featuring an animal act and aerial thrill stunts, a 4-H fashion review and a concert by the All-Ohio Boys Band.

Sunday has been designated as Civil War Day and Family Day.

Friday also was Governor's Day, but vacationing Gov. Michael V. DiSalle missed the traditional ribbon-cutting that opened the 107th exposition. Mrs. DiSalle cut the ribbon in his place.

Pat Rudy, 17-year - old Miami Countian from Covington, was crowned Junior Fair Queen and is now eligible to compete in the Queen of Queens contest at the fairgrounds Thursday night.

In her court will be Carol Martin, 17, of Gallipolis; Jacquelin Blakely, 18, of New Philadelphia; Sherry Dickinson, 18, of Mount Victory, and Kathy Cottrell of Frankfort.

Also crowned were the state's champion student auto mechanics. They are Gary Linard and Robert Bean of New Philadelphia High School who repaired 12 engine malfunctions in 13 minutes, 22 seconds to win individual $100 savings bonds.

Teams from 14 other Ohio high schools competed in the trouble-shooting contest sponsored by an automobile manufacturer.

In other competition:

Entries of Paul Honsburger of Tiffin won seven first places in the National Percheron Horse show.

James Brown, who with an older brother operates a 300-acre Scioto County farm at Friendship, won the state 4-H tractor operator contest. The Portsmouth West High School senior now is eligible to compete in a regional tractor operating contest at Dallas, Tex., Oct. 16-17.

A Lorain County team composed of Bruce McAlpin of Grafton, Jeane Hoffman of Elyria and Mike Abfall of Avon won the vegetable grading and identification contest.

A four-day program of harness racing at the fair begins Monday with purses estimated at $128,000.

Faces Return To Jail

Disbarred Attorney Due To Appeal His Conviction

LIMA, Ohio (AP)—Former attorney J. Harvey Crow of Urbana keeps popping in and out of court despite disbarments.

The popping will apply to jail if he persists in practicing law, judges have warned.

But Crow will have another day in court here Sept. 7 in his appeal from a new contempt conviction.

Statute permits a defendant to argue his own case and that's what Crow plans to do.

Crow wrote his notice of appeal to the 3rd District Appellate Court in longhand at the start of a 10-day sentence in Union County jail at Marysville for meddling in a civil suit there.

Appeal brought a stay of sentence and got him out after a night behind bars last April. He faces return to jail if he loses his appeal.

The Ohio Supreme Court, which disbarred Crow and lifted his attorney's license in 1959, threatened to jail him for six months if he practiced law again. High court action to make that threat good is under consideration, attorneys said.

Crow became an attorney in 1927. He was disbarred in 1935 by Stark County Common Pleas Court and reinstated in 1950. Champaign County Common Pleas Court disbarred him again in 1956 for unethical acts in divorce and property settlement cases. The state supreme court affirmed in 1957.

The following year, the state bar association accused Crow of engaging in legal matters in at least eight counties and asked the supreme court to order a halt. The counties were listed as Franklin, Fayette, Champaign, Madison, Logan, Allen, Hamilton and Montgomery.

The high court convicted Crow of contempt in 1959, ordered surrender of his license and warned that he faced jail. Crow then mailed his license to the court.

While those proceedings were in progress, Crow was barred from practice in the U.S. Supreme Court. Subsequently he was barred from practice in U.S. District court.

2 Killed, 1 Hurt In Skidding Car

BUCYRUS, Ohio (AP) — Two young men died and one was critically injured today when their car skidded more than 500 feet and hit a small bridge broadside. The impact tore off one side of the bridge on U.S. 30N at the east edge of Bucyrus.

The Ohio Highway Patrol identified the dead as Richard L. Myers, 19, and Richard C. Pierce, 21, both of Bucyrus.

Injured critically was Billy Joe Harness, 23, who landed on his head when impact hurled him 35 feet from the car.

Two others in the car who suffered apparently lesser injuries were Vance Bennett, 17, and Russell Hunter, 22, also of Bucyrus. They were reported in fairly good condition in Bucyrus Community Hospital.

Naval Plant Blast Kills 5

INDIAN HEAD, Md. (AP)—Five civilian workers were killed Friday night in a blast that shattered a reinforced concrete building at the naval propellant plant here.

The blast was the third accident this year at the plant, which makes fuel for rockets and missiles, and the eighth explosion since January, 1959. At least nine persons have died in the accidents.

Parts of the victims bodies were scattered over a 500-foot area. The building was virtually destroyed. Damage was estimated at $200,000.

Cause of the blast was not known immediately.

A Navy spokesman said research in manufacture of high-energy propellants was being conducted in the building where the blast occurred. Those killed were the crew working in the building at the time.

'M-Boys' Fail To Homer But Yanks Hold 2-Game Edge

Dodgers Rip Reds, 7-2, To Halt Losing Streak At 10

Tigers Hang On; Tribe Trimmed

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle again failed to hit a home run, but the New York Yankees retained a two-game lead in the American League race with a 3-0 victory at Kansas City Friday night behind the five-hit pitching of Ralph Terry.

Second-place Detroit won 6-0 at Washington with Jim Bunning limiting the Senators to two singles in a game held to eight innings by rain.

Third-place Baltimore beat Minnesota 5-2, the Chicago White Sox defeated Cleveland 3-2 in a battle for fourth place, and Boston won 12-6 at Los Angeles, peppering the Angels with four home runs.

In the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers shook loose from a 10-game losing string and edged within 2½ games of first-place Cincinnati by belting the Reds 7-2. St. Louis smacked San Francisco 7-3, and Pittsburgh defeated the Chicago Cubs 1-0. Philadelphia and Milwaukee split 9-4 decisions in a twi-night pair.

The Yankees broke a scoreless duel after Jim Archer (8-10) hit Maris with a pitch leading off the fourth inning. Maris scooted to second on Mantle's fly to deep left and then came in on Bill Skowron's single. The other two runs came in the ninth on singles by Mantle, Elston Howard, pinchhitter Yogi Berra and Terry, who won his sixth in a row for an 11-1 record. Terry has a string of 22 scoreless innings.

Bunning (15-9), a lean righthander, didn't allow a hit for 6 1-3 innings at Washington, then gave up singles by Gene Woodling and Willie Tasby in the seventh for the second two-hitter of his major league career.

Dick McAuliffe had two of the Tigers' eight hits off loser John Gabler (3-6) and two relievers and drove in three runs, two with a fourth-inning double.

Jack Fisher (7-11) delivered the key single as the Orioles beat the Twins and Jack Kralick (11-9) with four runs in the sixth. Dave Philley of the Birds set a major-league record with his 23rd pinch hit, bettering the record set by Sam Leslie with 22 for the New York Giants in 1932.

DIAMOND TAKING SHAPE. Heavy equipment is carving a baseball diamond out of rough land on city-owned property on Casting Club Rd., where a newly-organized Colt League for 15-16 year old boys opens play next May 22. Atty. Don Smith, league president, surveys the proposed field from behind home plate. The diamond will be the only one with an all-grass infield and outfield in the area when completed. Five teams, playing a 54-game schedule, will participate in the league. Atty. Smith said donations are being accepted in order that work may continue. Chuck Plate is excavating the area.

Only 2½ Behind; Pirates Triumph

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Duke Snider drove in two runs with a triple and a clinching home run as the Los Angeles Dodgers ended their losing string at 10 with a 7-2 victory at Cincinnati Friday night and moved within 2½ games of the first-place Reds in the National League race.

San Francisco, in third place, stayed five games behind as the Giants, after winning six straight, lost their second in a row, 7-3, at St. Louis. Pittsburgh defeated the Chicago Cubs 1-0, and Milwaukee and Philadelphia split 9-4 decisions in a twi-night pair.

In the American League, the New York Yankees retained a two-game lead with a 3-0 victory at Kansas City, but Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle again failed to hit a home run. Second-place Detroit beat Washington 6-0 in a game held to eight innings by rain. Baltimore won 5-2 at Minnesota, the Chicago White Sox defeated Cleveland 3-2, and Boston belted the Los Angeles Angels 12-6.

Snider's slugging, making up for an 0-for-4 performance when he was moved into the lineup by Mgr. Walt Alston Thursday night, was matched by a pair of home runs by Frank Howard in the Dodgers' 11-hit assault on Bob Purkey (14-9) and two relievers.

The Giants collapsed en masse at St. Louis. The Cards tagged Billy O'Dell (4-5) and two relievers for 13 hits and had the added help of three San Francisco errors, a wild pitch and a passed ball. An error, a walk and three singles counted two runs with two out in the fourth. Southpaw Ray Sadecki (12-6), who singled across the deciding run, gave up six hits and struck out eight.

A sixth-inning home run by Roberto Clemente backed righthander Tom Sturdivant (3-1) of the Pirates in his duel with Don Cardwell (11-11). Sturdivant gave up six hits in gaining his first NL shutout. Cardwell allowed only five hits.

Browns Rally To Beat Rams

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Cleveland Browns rallied for four touchdowns in the last half to defeat the Los Angeles Rams, 34-17, in a National Football League exhibition game Friday night.

Behind 10-7 at the half, the Browns sent fullback Jim Brown over on a two-yard plunge in the third quarter. Cleveland thus clinging to a 14-10 lead when quarterback Milt Plum began to click in the last period.

From the Ram 43 - yard line, Leon Clarke, an ex-Ram, got free, Plum hit him with a perfect pass at about the 12 and Clarke raced for a score.

The Browns' defense got the ball back almost immediately, and Plum threw a 30-yard strike to Bobby Crespino, rookie from Mississippi, in the end zone.

The final Cleveland score was set up when Vince Costello pounced on a fumble at the Los Angeles 5. Sam Baker, in at fullback, plunged the last yard.

Los Angeles scored 10 points in the second quarter on a six-yard plunge by Tom Wilson and an eight-yard field goal by Danny Villanueva. A 69-yard pass play, Zeke Bratkowski to Carroll Dale, set up Wilson's TD.

Len Dawson, who started at quarterback for the Browns and played the entire first half, was at the helm for Cleveland's first touchdown in the first quarter. It came on a three-yard plunge by Brown.

Plum was thrown for a 22-yard loss the first time he handled the ball, but finished with eight completions in 11 passes for 118 yards and two touchdowns. Dawson had 7 for 11 for 70 yards.

Brown ran 18 times for 118 yards.

2 Share Lead In Akron Golf

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Bob Goalby and Jay Hebert, tied with 137s at the halfway mark of the $50,000 American Golf Classic, held different views as to what the winning total would be after 72 holes Sunday.

Goalby, the classic's only golfer to put together a pair of subpar rounds, said he didn't believe par golf would be good enough to win the top prize of $9,000.

He shot an opening round of 68, then came in with a 34-35 Friday. Hebert, who won the 1960 PGA championship on the same course with a 281, one over par, added a 34-33—67 to his first-round 70. He predicted 280 would win the tournament.

Herbert, 30, who plays out of Miami, Fla., had a round of beautiful consistencies with 15 pars and 3 birdies.

Despite their 137s after 36 holes over the 7,165-yard Firestone Country Club course, the leaders were being pressed.

Masters champion Gary Player reeled off a blistering 33-34—67 and was only one stroke behind with 138. Tied with the star from South Africa was Frank Boynton of Corpus Christi, Tex. Boynton, after a first-round 68, dropped an 84-foot birdie putt on the 18th green for a 36-34—70.

Leading scorers after 36 holes:
Jay Hebert, Miami 70-67—137
Bob Goalby, Crystal River, Fla. 68-69—137

Wellsville's Water Ski Show To Attract 3,000

An attendance of 3,000 to 5,000 was predicted today for the water ski show of the Wellsville Boat Club Sunday afternoon at 1 on the Ohio River.

Dick Barnes, a show co-ordinator who predicted the number of spectators expected for the free event said salom racing will get underway at 1 for an hour.

The show, "Fun and Frolics On Water," begins at 2 and will continue for about two hours on the river at the 18th St. docks.

An injury to a ski jumper in the cast marked the rehearsal of Thursday. Pete Pretnick of Aliquippa suffered torn ligaments in a knee when he went over a six-foot jump, landed in rough water, and fell.

Replacing Pretnick in the cast will be George Ault of West Bridgewater.

Contestants in the salom event will race against the clock over a 315-yard long course through six staggered buoys 45 yards apart. A skier who falls while racing will be immediately disqualified, the club said. Both men and women will race for cash prizes.

The salom race contestants are to sign up at noon with Dick Spahr, commodore.

A Berlin Center state champion will give an exhibition of salom racing before the contestants begin competing.

One of the featured numbers is a water ballet, with seven women in colorful costumes gliding across the water doing intricate ski maneuvers. A 240-horsepower inboard craft of the Reed Marine store in Salem will tow the ballet troupe.

Other acts include shoe skiing, pyramids, high jumps, kite flyer and barefoot skiing. Sue Brewster, Ohio women's champion ski jumper, will perform.

Parking space for spectators will be available at the Georgetti terminal, along the railroad tracks at 15th St. and on one side only of Nevada St.

The club said Riverside Ave. at the boat docks will be reserved for spectators only.

The club is sponsoring the show to promote the facilities offered in the immediate area on the river.

Mouthpieces Slated For Potter Gridders

Mouth injuries and damaged teeth, common among high school football performers, should diminish noticeably this season for East Liverpool High's Potters.

Purchase of 50 new-type mouthpieces to curb such injuries was approved for the coming season by the Blue and White Nonpareil Club Friday night.

Westgate Gridders To Report Thursday

Westgate Junior High School football candidates will report Thursday at 3:30 p.m. at the school for instructions and physical examinations, Coach Norman Six announced today.

The mouthpieces, designed for comfort and in a manner which will not impede talking while the gridders are wearing them, will be individually fitted.

A sophomore fitted with one of the protective devices can retain it during the length of his scholastic football career.

The Potters thus will be a year ahead of many squads in having such protective gadgets. Mouthpieces will be compulsory for high school players in 1962 on a national scale.

Cost of purchasing the new equipment is estimated at $212. The club will sponsor a field day Sept. 2-3-4 at the Highland Country Club in Glenmoor to help defray expenses.

The club took under advisement a proposal to renovate the showerroom and toilet facilities for visiting teams at Patterson Field, badly in need of repairs.

No definite plans were approved however, with the club to meet again Tuesday night at 8 in the YMCA to reach a decision on the project.

The club approved by unanimous vote a proposal to contribute $200 to the recrational program at Thompson Park.

Plans were discussed for a parade Sept. 7 marking the opening of the Potters' new grid season.

Russell E. Hall, president, conducted business. Next meeting is Tuesday night.

Catcher Walker Cooper hit nine grand slam home runs for five different National League teams during his long career. He hit four for the Giants, two for the Cubs and one each for the Cardinals, Reds and Braves.

Engineer Wins Grand American Handicap Shoot

VANDALIA, Ohio (AP) — Pressure from his father-in-law forced Steve Barringer of Russell, Kan., nto the trapshooting game three years ago, and today the 26-year-old petroleum engineer is the clay target champion of the world.

The class C novice did it with a flourish Friday as he broke 99 of 100 from 20 yards to take the 62nd Grand American Handicap title from a field of 2,353, third largest in the event's history.

The new champion's father-in-law, Carl Friesen, urged Barringer, who up to that time had never seen a clay target, to get into the shooting game with him.

Steve fired practice rounds for a couple of years, got into the registered target phase this year and made his first trip to "the Roaring Grand."

The first televised boxing bout was held in London, Aug. 22, 1933.

Little League World Series Finals Today

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — El Cajon, Calif., and El Campo, Tex., who meet today for the Little League World Series Championship, are two teams with similar problems.

Both have depleted their pitching staffs and both have managers whose sons are stars of the club.

Woodrow Winfield, manager of the El Campo team, has two offspring playing under his wing — Mike, 11, in left field, and Woodrow Philip Jr., 12, at shortstop.

The latter probably will replacing starting pitcher David Vaclavik after the fourth inning because Vaclavik will have used up his eligibility. Little League rules specify that a pitcher can't work successive games or more than 12 innings a week. Vaclavik pitched eight innings in the first game against Terre Haute, Ind.

The El Cajon team has co-managers, each with a player on the squad.

They are Don Dolan, an air line pilot, whose son, Jim, is the shortstop, and Jim Pursley, a civil service worker, whose boy, Rick, plays center field.

Mike Salvatore will open on the mound for El Cajon but can pitch only five innings because he already has used up seven. His replacement will be Mickey Alasantro.

Browns' Schafrath Due Military Duty

CLEVELAND (AP) — Dick Schafrath, an offensive line starter on the Cleveland Browns football squad, is among the military reservists being called to active duty.

"We've had it," was the reaction of Coach Paul Brown. "We just don't have the replacement."

Oilers Down Titans, 30-20

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Take 'em away from the swaying palm trees, and the American Football League champion Houston Oilers will play the aggressive game Coach Lou Rymkus insists on from his troops.

That's exactly what happened Friday night as the Oilers whipped the New York Titans 30-20 in an exhibition at Greenville, S.C., and vindicated Rymkus' blast at the Houston management for their generosity in sending the team to Hawaii.

"We found it hard to think football around the palm trees," said an angry Rymkus last week when he brought his crew back from the 50th state after an unimpressive two-game stand. "A preseason camp has to be hard, and you have to work hard. You can't do it in a place like Hawaii."

Apparently you can do it in Greenville, where quarterback George Blanda tossed an 83-yard touchdown pass to Bill Groman and kicked three field goals while the Oilers evened their preseason record at 2-2.

The Dallas Texans kept their record unblemished by winning their fourth straight, 29-27, over the Denver Broncos, and Boston kept Buffalo winless by thumping the Bills 28-10.

In the National League, the champion Philadelphia Eagles handed Detroit its first loss and remained unbeaten with a 23-14 triumph over the Lions, and Cleveland's Browns defeated the Los Angeles Rams 34-17.

Koppers To Dedicate New Facility Monday

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Koppers Co. will hold dedication ceremonies Monday for its new $8½ million search center at nearby Monroeville.

The facility will be dedicated in honor of the late Gen. Brehon Somervell, former president and board chairman of Koppers and one-time commanding general of the Army Services Forces.

About a third of the buildings have been completed. Eventually, the center will house more than 1,500 scientists and their assistants.

Hong Kong Will Get Anti-Cholera Vaccine

HONG KONG (AP)—Red China is sending anti-cholera vaccine to this British colony, the Kwangtung Red Cross said in a letter to the local chamber of commerce.

An outbreak of cholera here during the past week has been attributed to an epidemic reported raging in southeast Kwangtung Province but the Chinese Communists have neither acknowledged nor denied the reports.

Thousands were reported to have died in Red China. Sixty-two cases were officially listed in Hong Kong, claiming six lives.

Since moving from Boston to Milwaukee in 1953, the Braves have never finished worst than third in the National League race.

One Of Steubenville Jail Fugitives Held

AKRON — Louis Fadlem Jr., 31, of Follansbee, who escaped from the Jefferson County jail in Steubenville Monday, was arrested Friday by Cuyahoga Falls police.

Officers said he had attempted to break into a restaurant on Ohio 8.

Fadlem and Edward Spensky, 48, both broke out of the jail by using a hacksaw blade to cut through a one-quarter inch thick steel wall and a plaster ceiling. Both were being held on charges of breaking and entering.

Police departments in nearby towns who chased a rented automobile at high speeds from Cuyahoga Falls, theorized the car may have been driven by Fadlem's partner.

In Military Buildup

3 Units In West Virginia Called For Active Duty

CHARLESTON (AP) — The Defense Department has called three West Virginia units to active duty in the beef-up of military might to meet the Berlin crisis.

The three-all ordnance companies—will be activated by Oct. 1. There were no Air Force or Navy Reserve units from West Virginia in the call-up.

The units are the West Virginia National Guard's 3664th Ordnance Company Direct Support of Point Pleasant, commanded by Capt. James O. Roseberry; the 812th Ordnance Company of Ripley and the 351st Ordnance Company of Martinsburg, both ammunition units of the Army Reserve.

The 3664th will go on active duty at its armory Sept. 25. It will be transferred later to Fort Polk, La.

The 812th, commanded by Capt. Glenn Smith of New Haven, and the 351st, headed by Capt. Charles W. Foreman of Martinsburg, will be mobilized at Fort Knox, Ky., Oct. 1, the Defense Department said.

"We're ready to go," said Smith, a school teacher in civilian life and the father of two young girls. "I told the men they should have a certain amount of pride that we were one of the first units alerted last week".

Smith's unit presently have 13 members undergoing six months of training at Fort Knox. Smith has commanded the 812th since it was activated 2½ years ago.

"We'd been sitting on top of the world and didn't figure we'd be called," 1st Lt. Daniel Killingsworth, a platoon leader with the 3664th, reflected.

"I always said if they wanted me again, they would have to come after me, and they have. So here I am, ready and willing to go."

Adj. Gen. Gene Hal Williams said there was to be a meeting in his office today to take whatever action is necessary to implement the active duty order so far as it pertains to the 3664th.

The 351st was to end its summer training at Camp Pickett, Va., this weekend.

Gov. Barron's Role In Story Corrected

Miss Callie Tsapis, member of the House of Delegates from Hancock County, today corrected a story in Friday's Review that Gov. W. W. Barron had denied her request to have a proposal for a second delegate included in his call for the next term of the State Legislature.

A source close to the governor said Gov. Barron probably would not want to "get caught in the middle of an argument." Gov. Barron did not directly deny the request, Miss Tsapis corrected.

Miss Tsapis' proposal for another Hancock County delegate, based on a population increase, was passed by the House but killed by the Senate at the last session.

She will reintroduce the proposal in January in Charleston.

CLEVELAND (AP)—A one-time substitute letter carrier today faces five years in a federal prison on mail theft charges. Sylvester Neal III, 34, of Cleveland, was sentenced Friday after pleading guilty. He admitted stealing 100 unemployment checks valued at $5,000 from the University Center Post Office branch.

Mrs. Millie Lewis, lecturer, was in charge of the program for the adult Grange. It included roll call, Mrs. Verla Culp; group singing, "My Faith Looks Up to Thee;" readings, Mrs. Lena Jarvis, Mrs. Geraldine Kessell, Mrs. Evelyn Kessell and Mrs. Anna Kennedy; vocal solo, Carl Leatherberry; skit, "Country Cousins," Mrs. Katherine Leatherberry; Mrs. Peggy Rose, Mrs. Evelyn Rose and Mrs. Eleanor Hays; current events, Jim Kessell; closing prayer, the Rev. The Juvenile Grange received 95 out of a possible 100 points for its inspection. Some 30 attended and David Hogue and Susan Rose were received as new members.

Tom Hays, master, presided and Kathy Rose, lecturer, presented the program. It consisted of a clarinet solo, Patty Hays; accordion solo, Billy McPherson; piano solos, Jimmie Kessel and Becky McPherson; reading, Mrs. Agnes McKenzie, and games. Firemen's Fete To Open Monday In Glenmoor Lot

The annual Glenmoor firemen's celebration will open Monday for a week, featuring a carnival at the Little League baseball field on Lisbon St. near Annesley Rd.

Chief Robert Jones said the celebration will include a parade of antique cars Wednesday night at 8, and a fireman's parade of bands, marching groups and fire apparatus Friday night at 7:30.

Heck's Amusements is providing rides and amusements for the carnival. Local fire departments will sponsor various booths and concessions each night through Saturday.

A matinee will be held Saturday afternoon for youths. Youths between 12 and 18 are eligible for a contest in selling ride tickets. The top two salesmen will be presented transistor radios as prizes, Chief Jones said.

Don Parsons is carnival committee chairman. Herman Heiney is chairman of the parades.

Man, 39, Drowns

LORAIN, Ohio (AP)—A 39-year-old Michigan man drowned in the Black River Friday at the National Tube dock here. The victim, Daniel Gillespie, of Charlevoix, had been standing watch on a steamer which was unloading ore. He fell into the river when he slipped while climbing a ladder from the dock to the ship.

Killed In Wreck

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Glenn M. Carrigan of New Castle, Pa., pinned beneath his truck as it turned over when hit by a car in nearby Lowellville, was fatally injured Friday. Carrigan, a driver for a New Castle florist, had just delivered flowers to a Lowellville funeral home.

Tough Laws Held As Need To Hit Crime

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., today added up the first week's testimony before his rackets subcommittee and said new, tough laws are needed to get at "the big wheels, the brains of organized crime."

The hearings before McClellan's Senate investigations subcommittee will resume Monday. He said they will feature more testimony on big-time illegal gambling ranging from Miami, Fla., to Delaware, before switching to another underworld axis—from Chicago to East St. Louis, Ill., Little Rock and Hot Springs, Ark., and New Orleans, La.

Jerome S. Adlerman, subcommittee counsel, and McClellan set Thursday as a target date for winding up this round of inquiry. At a second round later in the year, McClellan said, some of the underworld's most notorious names will be called as witnesses. But whether they will have much to offer was questionable.

Three witnesses invoked the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution Friday, refusing to answer questions on grounds their answers might incriminate them.

Former Miami policeman Elum (Bill) Caudell, named in testimony as allied with gamblers, was among those pleading the Fifth Amendment.

Under questioning from McClellan, Caudell refused to reply when asked if it was true that he is a master at pilfering information from race tracks and feeding it to clandestine race wire services —a practice in violation of Florida law.

Killed In Plunge

CLEVELAND (AP)—Mrs. Minnie Mattey, an 84-year-old widow, was killed when she plunged through the attic ceiling and fell 1½ stories to the floor of the dinette at her home. Police said she apparently had been walking on a small board over joists in an unfloored section when she tripped and fell.

Pittsburgh Breweries To Hike Price Monday

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh breweries will raise prices to distributors Monday. The increase is expected to be passed on to consumers, the Malt Beverage Distributors Association says.

The association said Friday breweries will raise prices 50 cents on a half barrel, 20 cents on a case of bottled beer and 10 cents on a case of canned beer.

"A similar increase is anticipated from other breweries throughout the state and possibly from out-of-state breweries," the association said. "It is expected that the increase will be passed on to retailers and to the consumers."

The increases reportedly stemmed from labor contracts signed recently by the Duquesne and Iron City Brewing Companies.

What Are Your Chances of Getting a Husband?

By JOHN MICHAELS

WHAT ARE YOUR chances of finding a husband? It's a question that some 22 million eligible American women might ponder, and the answer that echoes in their unclaimed hearts very likely has 22 million variations. But now that the 1960 national census has been analyzed we have some accurate statistics—and, ladies, the news is not good.

The first indication of trouble is at the very top of the vital statistics, where the national ratio of the sexes is revealed to be only 97 adult males for every 100 females. As the figures are broken down according to marital status, the man shortage becomes even more critical. For instance, among all unattached adults—single, widowed, or divorced—there are only 85 men for every 100 women. Applied to the 30- to 65-year-old age bracket, the ratio drops to a startling 68 eligible men for every 100 women.

All of which means that more than one-third of America's women are manless, and since they outnumber the eligible men by more than 3½ million their chances of landing a spouse are not certain, to say the least.

Women stranded in the 30-and-over age group are particularly hard pressed. The statistics indicate that a young lady must get to the altar early if she is to avoid spinsterhood. The median age for first marriages for women has dropped to a low of 20.3 years (it was 21.9 in 1900), and the records show that 70 percent of all American women marry before 24 years of age. By the time a woman reaches 30, her chance of getting married is but one in two. At 40,the odds are one in five.

Most alarming, however, is the fact that the huge surplus of unmarried women has more than doubled in the decade since the 1950 census—and there appears to be no solution to the problem.

The Census bureau, with a nod to Horace Greeley's famed quote, has put together another set of figures that suggests, "go West, young woman, go West," as the best answer to the maiden's prayer. In eleven states, all west of the Mississippi, the male dominates the population. Alaska tops the list with 132.3 men for every 100 women, and Hawaii is next with a 114.8-100 ratio. Arizona, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, South Dakota, Washington, and Wyoming also are among the "manliest" states.

Massachusetts, which has only 93.4 males per 100 females, is the poorest state for the spouse seeker, although the District of Columbia, with its army of stenographers, is lower with an 88.3 male ratio.

Although the sad plight of America's lonely hearts is not to be minimized, it is trifling compared to the man shortage in such war-torn countries as Russia, Germany, and Japan. Russia, which lost more than 20 million men in World War II, probably has the worst problem. Russian women in the 30-40 age group outnumber the men by seven to one, and the competition for the male heart is so severe that the Kremlin has authorized a spirited campaign through the Red press to stamp out "she wolves." Apparently husband stealing has become a popular pastime behind the Iron Curtain.

War losses are not the key factor in the scarcity of the eligible American male, even though more than 425,000 young men never returned from World War II and the Korean conflict. Experts point to a combination of basic statistics as the root of the problem. For the past three decades girl babies have dominated the new population; women have been living longer than men—the average has ranged as high as four years; and the soaring divorce rate (more than 1,000 a day in the U.S.) has muddled the once-standard marital pattern.

DESPITE such handicaps, the majority of American women are attacking the shortage problem with vigor, determination, and female canniness. There's scarcely a male haunt they haven't invaded or an introduction opportunity they've overlooked.

Some girls move to the big city, believing they'll find more men there. Others join golf clubs, take weekend skiing junkets, ocean cruises, camping trips—the kind of activities men usually participate in. Political clubs, church societies, and educational courses are favorites, too. And if the girls don't find a man, at least they've had some fun or improved their minds.

On the commercial side, marriage brokerage businesses thrive. Some of these organizations are little more than date bureaus, but the majority has trained psychologists who earnestly seek to help clients make a wise choice of a potential mate. Registration fees usually are around $100 a year, and if the bureau's pairing results in matrimony, there is another fee, again around $100.

But no amount of money, effort, and high hopes can erase the statistics of the Bureau of Census, which show there simply aren't enough men to go around; a few million women may have to get used to being always the bridesmaids, never the brides.

That always-elusive prey, the groom, is getting to be scarce game in this country, but a good huntress can still flush out a prize

BRUNCH MENU NOTES:

Morning eye-opener—Pamper your guests and awaken their appetites for brunch with an eye-opener served in their room. Set a pretty tray with sparkling glasses of iced fruit juices with a plump, ruby strawberry in each glass and a small carafe of fragrant, hot coffee accompanied by those irresistible demitasse cups. A tiny, colorful blossom, freshly picked from your garden and placed on each saucer, adds charm to the setting.

Outdoor feast—While the chef is "lord-and-mastering" at the charcoal fire, serve honeydew melon wedges topped with a bright row of whole strawberries. Bacon steaks, cut ½-in. thick, will tantalize everyone as the aroma drifts from the grill. If the chef is a pancake lover it won't take much persuasion for him to show his prowess at "flapjack flippin'." To make it easy, use a mix for the batter and serve with a delicious fruit butter—whip together 1 cup unsalted butter and ½ cup sifted confectioners' sugar, then add slowly, whipping in, 12 oz. of frozen peaches which have been thawed and cut in pieces. Or you can do the same with strawberries, but decrease the sugar to ¼ cup. Lastly, have an enormous pot of hot coffee to linger over—and milk for the small fry.

DINNER MENU NOTES:

Appetizer—Take a little time to tape a garland of water cress around the edge of your prettiest glass bowl and presto!—a "conversation-piece" to fill with chilled water cress soup. For a quick recipe, heat a can of frozen cream of potato soup, 1⅔ cups milk, 2 tablespoons instant minced onion, ¼ teaspoon celery salt, and 2 drops Tabasco until soup is melted. Bring to boiling, remove from heat, and sieve. Cool, blend in 1 cup finely cut water cress, and chill thoroughly. Fill the bowl and, in the living room, ladle the soup into punch cups.

Entree—When your guests taste your superb fried chicken, everyone will forgive you for the time you spent in the kitchen. The flavor trick—marinating the pieces for an hour in a mixture of buttermilk, savory, and freshly ground pepper before coating with seasoned flour and frying.

Vegetable—A rich Italian-style vegetable dish, prepared after breakfast and put in the refrigerator, is ready for the oven in a bright enamel casserole. (See recipe.)

Salad—Toss crisp greens and crunchy garden vegetables together with an onion dressing for your salad bowl.

Rolls—Your freezer is still holding plenty of the yeast rolls frozen last week for yesterday's party. Warm them while the casserole is heating and your dinner is just minutes from the table.

Dessert—One of the simplest and most flavorsome desserts is fresh blueberries topped with sour cream and brown sugar. Serve in low glass bowls to point up the color contrast.

Zucchini Provencale

TO PREPARE AND COOK: 25 MIN. TO HEAT: 20-30 MIN.

- 8 to 10 small (2½ lbs.) zucchini squash
- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- ⅔ cup coarsely chopped onion
- ¼ lb. mushrooms sliced lengthwise through caps and stems
- ⅔ cup (about 3 oz.) grated Parmesan cheese
- 1½ cups (2 6-oz. cans) tomato paste
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon black pepper
- ½ teaspoon Accent
- 1 clove garlic, minced

1. Wash, trim off ends, and cut zucchini crosswise into ⅛-in. slices.

2. Heat olive oil in a saucepan; add zucchini, onion, and mushrooms. Cover and cook 10 to 15 min., or until zucchini is just tender, stirring occasionally.

3. Remove zucchini mixture from heat and, with a fork, mix in about one-half of the grated cheese. Add a mixture of the tomato paste and seasonings; blend lightly and thoroughly. Turn into a 2-qt. casserole and sprinkle with remaining cheese.

4. Set in a 350°F oven 20 to 30 min., or until thoroughly heated. 8 servings

Ticktacktoe on the Go

By Bess A. Lee

A new version of the age-old game, ticktacktoe, is played by watching cars go by. Draw the usual four crossed lines. Each player chooses a certain make or color of a car. One player draws circles to represent his choice, and the other draws crosses for his. Then they watch the cars on one side of the street or road, and each time a car of their choice appears they make their mark in a square. The object, as in the original ticktacktoe, is to get three circles or crosses in a row vertically, diagonally, or horizontally. But this game moves at a faster pace, and there is not as much time to plan the next move, which adds to the excitement. To make it longer and more difficult, use three horizontal lines crossing three vertical ones.

Magic Fifteen

By Maude E. Hallmer

Draw a square and divide it into nine small squares. Fill these small squares with the digits, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, placing them so the total in each column, vertical, horizontal, and diagonal, adds up to 15.

Prepare Ahead for

A canned ham, dressed up with an easily prepared maple sirup-mustard glaze, makes an impressive addition to your buffet table.

These menu ideas can help keep you out of the kitchen to enjoy more of the weekend with your guests. The secret is organization! Weekend suggestions include Saturday lunch (they'll arrive just before noon), buffet supper that evening (to meet your friends, perhaps for bridge), Sunday morning brunch (outdoors if the weather holds), and a late afternoon dinner.

LUNCHEON MENU NOTES:

Appetizer—The guests have arrived and are unpacking. Here's your moment to fill handsome decanters with chilled vegetable juices or beef bouillon. On a tray arrange low-ball glasses, a bowl of ice, and assorted seasonings—seasoned salt, Tabasco, lemon twists, Worcestershire sauce, and cloves—ingredients from which to create imaginative on-the-rocks concoctions. Include with your first course assorted cocktail crackers and a quick-to-make dip (try liver sausage softened with mayonnaise and seasoned with finely chopped pickle, grated onion, salt, and pepper)

Entree—Excuse yourself for a few minutes to pop a pre-prepared casserole into the oven. Bread and cheese fingers layered in your gayest ovenware with a seasoned egg-milk mixture poured over all would be a good choice.

Biscuits—While you're in the kitchen dip refrigerated biscuits in melted herb-flavored butter (parsley, chives, or dill would be fine) and overlap to form a ring in a cake pan, ready for the oven.

Salad—The "stick" salad of carrots, celery, green onions, and cucumber spears prepared in the morning and thoroughly chilled, will add a colorful splash to the table. Poke them into a large glass snifter or a pottery pitcher full of crushed ice.

Beverage—Sprigs of fresh mint from the garden and 3 tablespoons of lemon or lime juice added to four generous servings of tea about an hour before serving adds a refreshing flavor. Fill your tallest glasses with ice and pour the tea just as everyone is coming to the table. Serve the children strawberry- or chocolate-flavored milk in bright mugs with twisted peppermint stick stirrers.

Dessert—For dessert, plan on Banana-Pecan Ice Cream and Choco-Oat Bars. (See recipes.)

Choco-Oat Bars

TO PREPARE: 25 MIN. TO BAKE: 15-20 MIN.
(allow time for chilling dough)

- 1 cup sifted flour
- ½ teaspoon baking soda
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup butter or margarine
- ½ cup peanut butter
- 1½ teaspoons vanilla extract
- ¾ cup firmly packed brown sugar
- ¼ cup water
- 1 cup uncooked rolled oats
- 1 6-oz. pkg. semisweet chocolate pieces, melted and cooled

1. Sift first three ingredients together. Set aside.
2. Cream butter, peanut butter, and vanilla extract together thoroughly. Add sugar gradually, creaming until fluffy after each addition.
3. Mixing until blended after each addition, alternately add dry ingredients in thirds, water in halves, to creamed mixture. Mix in the rolled oats. Chill dough thoroughly, about 2 hrs.
4. Set out an 11x7x1½-in. baking pan. Invert onto a piece of waxed paper. Using a knife, mark around pan to form an outline without cutting through the waxed paper.
5. Divide the chilled dough into halves. Press one-half evenly into the pan. Cover with the melted chocolate. Pat remainder of dough evenly over marked-off oblong on waxed paper. Invert waxed paper and dough onto top of chocolate, pressing down gently. Carefully peel off waxed paper.
6. Bake at 375°F 15 to 20 min. Remove pan to cooling rack. Cool completely. Cut into 2½x¾-in. bars or squares. About 4 doz. cookies

BUFFET SUPPER MENU NOTES:

Appetizer—Frozen cooked shrimp, thawed Friday night and marinated in a garlic French dressing all day Saturday, are appealing appetizers paired on picks with avocado pieces dipped in lemon juice. Plump, scarlet-hued cherry tomatoes transform the duo into a colorful trio.

Entree—Heat a canned ham with a sweet glaze for your buffet entree. The glaze, incidentally, could be prepared earlier that morning, or even the day before. (See recipe.)

Casserole—A large casserole with a warmer would be ideal for serving Water Cress-Noodle Casserole. (See recipe.)

Vegetable—Just a few minutes in the kitchen will give you time to cook some frozen Italian beans and toss them with sliced water chestnuts and pimiento strips for extra crunch and color. The seasoned melted butter will accentuate the delicate flavor of this vegetable medley.

Relish—Serve spiced peaches hot for a change of pace, keeping them warm over a bright flame.

Rolls—The rolls, that you baked and froze on that cool rainy day last week, will take only a few minutes to heat in the oven. Heap them, piping hot, on a pedestal plate instead of the usual basket or bread tray to add an interesting note to your buffet table.

Beverage—Offer a choice of hot or iced coffee. The iced coffee will be especially tempting served in those antique glass steins that you've been collecting and treasure so highly.

Dessert—A refrigerator dessert, bursting with the refreshing flavor of lemon, lime, orange, or pineapple will add a final lilt to the meal.

A Visit with Ike and Mamie at Gettysburg

By JOHN M. ROSS

After nearly a half century of public life, how are General and Mrs. Eisenhower adjusting to their much-deserved "retirement"? Come with us to their Pennsylvania farm and see

THE RED-BRICK Colonial at the corner of Stevens and Carlisle Streets doesn't usually earn a second glance from the thousands of sight-seers who stream into historic Gettysburg, Pa., each day.

It sits peacefully in the shade of massive elms and maples on the edge of the Gettysburg College campus, two short blocks from the center of town. It has no gates or guards, no name plate or identification. From the outside, it appears to be a typical Gettysburg residence—sedate and well-groomed.

Yet when I rang the bell and the heavy white door was opened, a transformation seemed to take place. The sound of busy typewriters and telephones filled the entrance hall. Young ladies moved about quietly in efficient-secretary manner.

I strained to hear the creaking of a rocking chair, but couldn't. For an instant, I thought I was at the wrong address. Then a courteous man of military bearing assured me I was not.

He led me up a flight of carpeted stairs, and after waiting in an outer foyer momentarily, I was ushered into a sunlit office of medium size. The man behind the desk looked well-tanned and remarkably fit. He rose gingerly from his big leather chair, flashed his trade-mark grin, and extended his right hand.

"Mr. President," I said after a formal greeting, "I was under the impression you had retired."

Dwight D. Eisenhower chuckled knowingly.

Last Jan. 20, when he completed his term as 34th President of the United States and closed the book on almost 50 years of public service, he announced his intention of retreating to his Gettysburg farm and plopping into a rocking chair. In about six months, he added, he expected to start rocking. Now the six months had passed, but it was obvious that Ike had not taken to his rocker. Indeed, judging by the activity, he is undoubtedly the nation's busiest retired executive!

Schedule Continues Heavy

The 70-year-old ex-President admitted that all his preconceived notions about retirement were wrong. Having been geared to work hard all his life, he knew it would be difficult to stop when he left the White House. To avoid a radical change of pace, he penciled in several personal projects to be pursued at a relaxed pace.

However, the demands on his time have been so great that most of these plans still have not gotten off the ground. And he concedes that he has been unable to notice any appreciable difference between his present schedule and the one that governed his White House activities.

Over the Hill and Beyond the Dump

What a lovely picnic spot,
Not too cold and not too hot,
Clear brook rippling, flowered dell,

Isolated, rustic view,
Antless, free of vermin, too!
We'll locate it, I've a hunch,
Now that we have finished lunch.

A thin, weary woman stood before the judge asking for a divorce. "Your honor," she explained, "my husband is a hypnotist, and before every meal he puts me in a trance. I think I'm a canary, and he gives me nothing but canary seed to eat."

"I have heard some silly stories in my years on the bench," the judge replied coldly, "but yours is the most ridiculous. Get out of here!"

As the couple left the courtroom, the angry husband growled at his wife, "Tonight you're turning into a sparrow and going out to hunt for your own food!"

Now dawns that sultry season,
With moist, oppressive weather,
When everything will come apart
That's meant to stick together.
And by some savage trick of fate,
Some cruel, inhuman art,
Everything will stick together
That's meant to come apart.

One of the most delightful things about home movies is that they don't fit into their owners' wallets. —Ken Kraft

The pastor was explaining the different needs of people. "A Greater Power than ourselves understands this," he told the congregation. "That's why roses grow in sunshine while fuchsias need shade."

After the service, an effusive woman greeted him outside. "What a thoughtful sermon," she said. "It told me so much—why, I've always wondered what was wrong with my fuchsias."

The couple returned from a vacation, and their next-door neighbors asked about the trip. "We drove 5,000 miles in two weeks," the husband said.

The neighbors were impressed. "That's quite a distance."

"Well, actually," the husband admitted, "my wife did the driving."

"And you just enjoyed the scenery?" asked the incredulous neighbor.

"Yes—that and held the wheel."

"Doesn't that bother you while I'm talking?"

The Eisenhower clan assembles. From left: grandson David, Mamie, Ike, granddaughters Mary Jean, 5; Susan, 9; Anne, 12 (far right); son John, and wife Barbara.

One of the major projects Ike planned for retirement was to write his memoirs. But even with a priority rating, this job is far behind schedule. To illustrate his point, the General picked up a small batch of penciled notes from his desk. It represented, he said, the only work he had accomplished on the manuscript in three weeks—and it had been done during an hour-and-a-half drive to Washington, D. C., to keep an engagement.

The closeness of his new headquarters to the capital has brought a steady procession of former military and government associates and current political leaders to 300 Carlisle Street. Some come out of courtesy or personal friendship. Others seek encouragement or advice. Ike sees all of them.

Invitations to public functions, dedications, fund-raising banquets, anniversary celebrations arrive literally by the sackful. Other mail totals about 200 letters a day, much of which gets Ike's personal attention.

But if the rigor of this strange and hectic retirement schedule is a burden to the ex-President, it doesn't show. He seems relaxed, bounding with energy, and enormously satisfied with his new role of private citizen. The warmth of his personality, fired by his electric smile, puts a visitor at ease immediately. He treats strangers like old friends and answers their questions with surprising candor.

Ike soon hopes to begin cattle raising on a more active scale. The Black Angus pictured here is one of 80 head of cattle now on the Gettysburg farm.

The General's two-story office building was formerly the residence of the president of Gettysburg College. The interior is freshly painted and tastefully decorated. The former second-floor bedrooms and sitting rooms have been converted into offices for Ike and his staff of five, and it is significant that the boss works with his door always open.

His desk is uncluttered by souvenirs, although a hand blotter is embellished with the emblem of his World War II SHAEF command and a silver desk-blotter holder bears the etched autographs of former close associates of his administration. Pictures of Mamie, their son John, his wife Barbara, and the grandchildren are in evidence. The flags from his White House office—the Stars and Stripes and the blue Presidential flag—stand to the rear of his desk.

Intends to Speak His Mind

"Mr. President," I asked, "what effect has this sudden release from responsibility had on your nervous system—has it left you somewhat restless?"

He laughed loudly and said he hadn't had much time to think about it. He pointed out quickly that the change of address from Washington to Gettysburg had not reduced his deep concern over important national and international questions.

When I did see him, the bed looked very big and the boy in the oxygen tent very small. I was scared when I saw all the wires and tubes attached to him. But he nodded when the doctor asked if he recognized us, and he managed a wisp of a smile when his father held up a baseball mitt for him to see. "It's a Moose Skowron special," Pete said, "a present from Aunt Marie."

I went out happy. "Pete," I whispered. "Did you see how red his lips were? No more blueberry pie!"

Still, I didn't breathe comfortably until the first 48 hours ended, and "Cafone, Paul" came off the critical list. Even then, I worried because he didn't want to talk, and we couldn't get him to smile. The nurses were a comfort. "His throat's just sore from the operation," they explained.

It took special permission from the hospital to get the first real smiles out of Paul. When twin Peter walked in, followed by a surprise birthday cake, Paul lit up brighter than the 16 candles. Before the day ended, he was cheerfully tossing paper airplanes at the nurses when they walked in and exchanging tips on pitching with a nurse who'd played on the girls' softball team in high school.

AFTER 41 DAYS at the hospital, Paul came home to a bedroom papered with get-well cards. He had a scrapbook full of memories, a bat and ball from our newspaper, plus an electric baseball game to keep him busy until he could play the real thing. He had the Pax party to look forward to for the donors, doctors, and just plain people whose kindness and skills had given him a new lease on life.

Paul developed an appetite like a bear just out of hibernation, eating us out of house and home—and we loved it. He strolled about the house with a wheat-flakes box in his hand, munching and talking about the Peewee League and how some day he and Peter would make the New York Yankees together.

The way they've been practicing lately, I won't be surprised if they do. But seeing the boys hit consecutive home runs 15 years from now won't give us half the thrill we got the day we brought Paul home from the hospital.

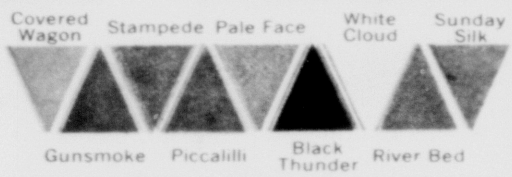

On our way, we stopped for an appointment I had with our family doctor. When he saw Paul, he looked amazed. "Mrs. Cafone," he said, "if you had a million dollars, you couldn't have gotten better care for your son! It's amazing what they've done for him." Pete and I beamed.

The doctor turned to Paul. "Take your shirt off, son," he said, "and let's listen to that fine new heart of yours."

Paul backed off a step. "Wait a minute, doctor," he said, a new pride in his voice. "I'm not the patient this time. Mom is!"

Chatting with Ike in his office, author John Ross found him fit and far from "retired."

A Visit with Ike and Mamie

The former Chief Executive fully intends to speak his mind on the issues that confront the nation. He feels he has an obligation to stimulate thought among his fellow Americans, so he will write and make speeches from time to time.

When our conversation switched to golf, the General admitted somewhat ruefully that rainy weather and his many out-of-town trips had curtailed his play considerably. But he manages to work in a round when the nine-hole Gettysburg Country Club course—where he is a member—isn't too crowded. Son John and local friends usually make up the foursome.

More Time for Family

Occasionally, young David Eisenhower, the General's 13-year-old grandson, will be included—if he's not too busy with the Little League.

Ike lights up when he talks about David, who has developed into a husky, athletic youngster. He has a good swing and hits the ball well, Gandfather Eisenhower says, but he needs more practice on the greens.

The opportunity to spend more time with his grandchildren (Anne, 12; Susan, 9; and Mary Jean, 5; in addition to David) has been one of the real joys of Ike's retirement to Gettysburg. John—usually called Johnny by his parents—has taken a year's leave without pay from the Army to help his father wade through a small mountain of letters, reports, and official documents, and determine their historical value to the Government archives or the Eisenhower Museum in Abilene, Kans. John, a lieutenant colonel now, lives on the edge of the Eisenhower farm in a remodeled house which he purchased from his father three years ago.

Ike also said that his recent hectic schedule had kept him from his easel and paints, but that he hoped to correct this soon.

The General revealed that he and Mrs. Eisenhower are looking forward to traveling abroad, especially to Scotland, for it was there, at Culzean Castle above the Firth of Clyde, that they had their first real postwar vacation in 1946.

I asked the General if he had any formula for retirement by which others might profit. He said no, he didn't think he was that much of an expert on retirement, but he summarized his own approach in two words: keep busy.

Then Mrs. Ann Whitman, his personal secretary, came in to advise the General that the ambassador from Nationalist China had arrived for his appointment. I prepared to leave, remarking that I probably had set some kind of journalistic record by not asking him one political question. Ike responded with laughter.

Stepping across the hall, I chatted with Col. Robert L. Schulz, who has been Ike's aide for 16 years. (As a five-star general, Ike is entitled to an aide and an orderly for the rest of his life.) The Colonel knows his boss's habits and reports no indication of the General slowing down in retirement.

Dawn-to-Dusk Schedule

Ike still has the old Army habit of rising early—usually shortly after dawn. Often he'll read for a while—he likes Westerns—before tackling a substantial breakfast. Orange juice, filet mignon, and toast are his favorite combination. He arrives at the office sometime between 7:15 and 8 a.m. and tackles his day's schedule head-on. He takes an hour-and-a-half for lunch at the farm, and sometimes naps. If he's pressed for time, he might send out for a sandwich from the tearoom across the street from his office. His afternoon schedule runs to 6 p.m.

In addition to Mrs. Whitman and Colonel Schulz, the General has three secretaries on his staff assigned largely to correspondence. Additional help was needed immediately following Ike's departure from the White House, when more than 20,000 pieces of mail arrived in one week—most of them thanking him for his years of service.

Leaving the General's office, I drove through the heart of the battlefield to the Eisenhower farm, which is about four miles southwest of Gettysburg. The Eisenhower acreage takes in part of Seminary Ridge, where Pickett made his courageous charge on July 3, 1863—the third and last day of the bloody battle.

Ike's farm includes about 190 acres, and he is in partnership with an old Army crony,

Paul couldn't smile for several days after the operation, but when he began tossing paper airplanes at the nurses, I knew that the worst was over.

A New Heart for My Son

ILLUSTRATION BY GEORGE PORTE

The mother of a "blue baby" tells of her hopes, doubts, and fears as surgeons prepare for an operation that may save her boy from death

By MRS. LEE CAFONE as told to Arlene and Howard Eisenberg

MY SON PAUL is a twin. I remember when he and his brother Peter were born. "Biggest set of twins we've ever had here," the nurse said, "and we've had plenty."

"Nine pounds and a half for Peter. Six pounds, 10 ounces for Paul," my husband Pete told me later. "Wow! And just perfect-looking!"

Perfect on the outside but not the inside.

Paul, we were to learn, was one of the six in every 1,000 American children born with defective hearts. He was a "blue baby." Early in childhood he had preliminary surgery, and we were told the day would come when a radical operation would be necessary.

But as Paul grew older, we thought less about this grim warning. How could we worry about a corner-lot ballplayer who could hit almost as far as his bigger, heavier brother; who pitched so well he was soon welcome in games with the bigger neighborhood children; who, along with Peter, had been promised a place on the local Knights of Columbus Peewee League team when he reached his eighth birthday?

But by age seven, Paul seemed headed for the biggest disappointment of his young life, and we for another crisis. He was too short of breath to pitch for more than an inning or so. He needed someone to run the bases for him. He picked at his food like a sparrow. To his embarrassment, Paul had to sit out gym periods in the principal's office. Lack of oxygen in the blood had increased so noticeably that his classmates, seeing the blue tinge to his lips, teased: "Hey Paul—you been eatin' blueberry pie again?" Our doctor's earlier warning came back to us then.

Finally our hospital's physiologists, cardiologists, internists, pediatricians, and the director of open-heart surgery set the date for major surgery —Aug. 23, 1960. Pete got his assignment: bring in 30 compatible blood-donor volunteers—enough for the heart-lung machine, for transfusions if needed, and for stand-bys.

That sounded like a big assignment. But thanks to Pax, our neighborhood social-philanthropic club, and to our local newspapers, a well-publicized blood-donor drive got under way.

It seemed that everybody for miles around Hackensack, N.J., was thinking of Paul. Money came from strangers, and so many people offered to donate blood that Pete joked he'd need a bus to carry them all to the hospital. He even got his bus —contributed, too.

And then came the night of Aug. 22—and the doubts and fears we'd repressed so long. We could postpone the operation, I thought—at least until after Paul's eighth birthday next week. But no surgery soon and, barring a miracle, he would not outlive his childhood. With surgery there was about a 90-percent chance of survival—good odds to a doctor but terrifying to a mother. I was tempted to trust in a miracle; certainly I had prayed hard enough for one. But my husband and I knew what must be done, and the next morning he was up early getting together the blood donors.

A little after nine, he was back for me and for my neighbor Tessie Vasile, who'd offered to stay with me while Pete was busy with the donors.

In the hospital waiting room, Tessie and my s ter Marie tried to get me talking on everythi from the political conventions to the troubles Eddie and Liz. It was no use. When they orde lunch for me in the cafeteria, I couldn't eat. Al could think about was what was going on upsta and the doctor's description of it the day befor

The incision. Draining the little heart of blo Connecting the heart-lung machine to take over t pumping of blood through my baby's veins. Cu ting out excess muscle tissue that narrowed t passage leading to his lungs. Closing the hole in t wall between the heart chambers. Sewing in teardrop-shaped plastic patch to widen the pa sageway to the lungs—to give Paul the oxyg which was being choked off.

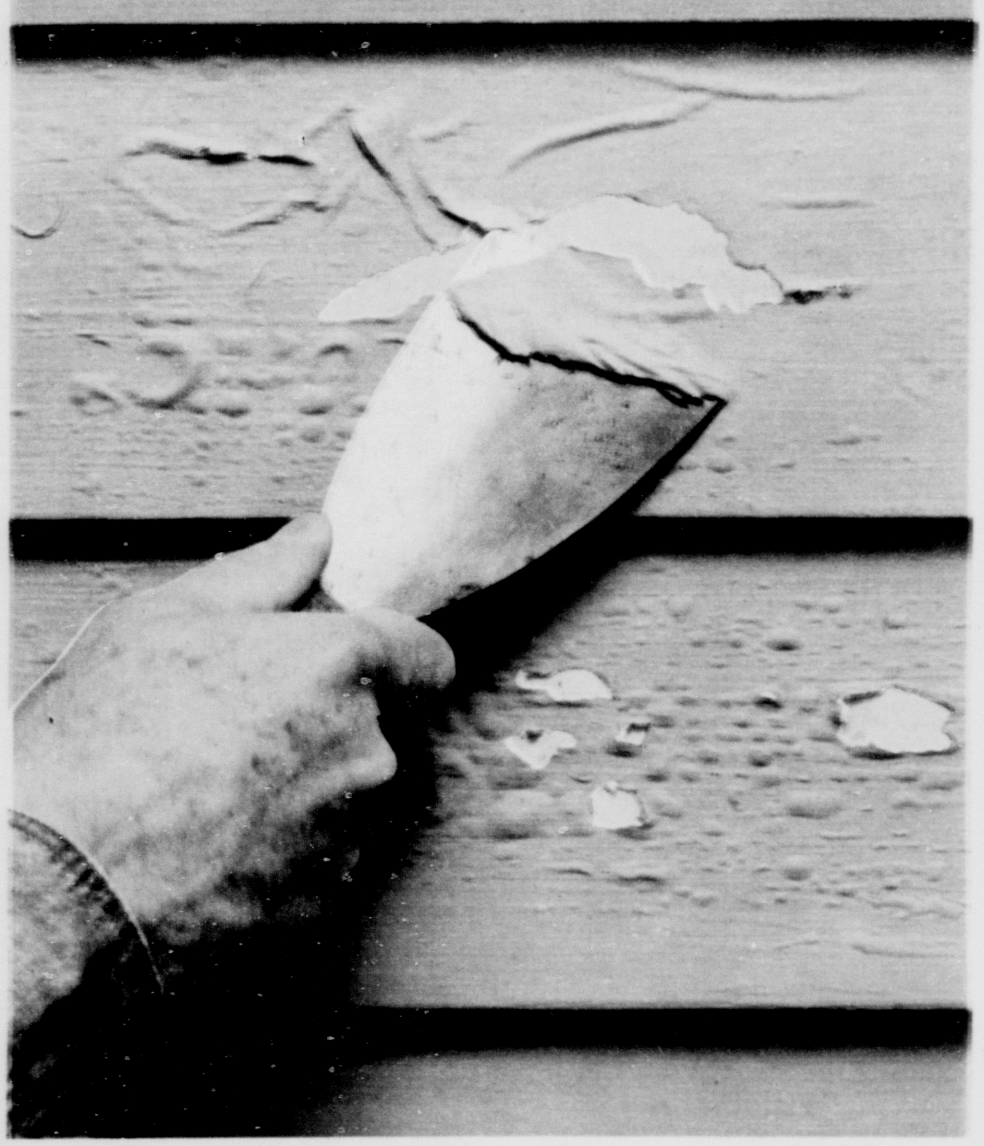

AT 1:30 P.M. a doctor approached us. I was afra to hear what he might say, but then he smil "He's off the heart-lung now and on his own," said. "But it'll be an hour until they're finished."

At the end of that hour, our own surgeon stro in. "The operation's finished. He's pink. That's good sign. Meet me back here at 5:30, and I'll ta you up to see him."

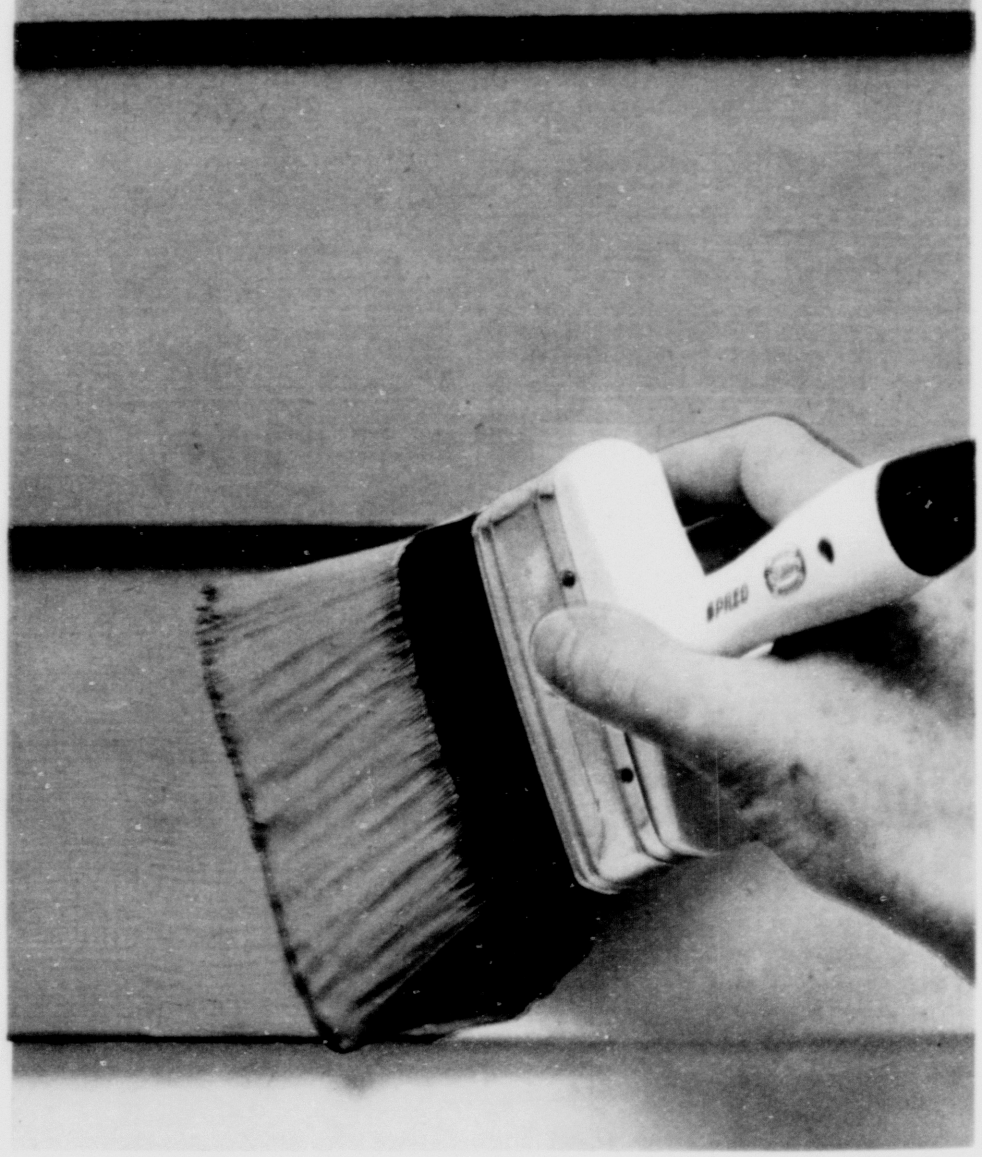

Pete squashed one of four packs of cigaret he'd smoked so far. He thanked the doctor and to my hand. "Let's go," he said. "Your mother's wa ing for the news." I couldn't say a word. I ju clung to Pete's hand, forced a smile, and follow him out of the hospital. It wouldn't be over for r until I could see my son.

BLISTERS

STOPPED!

Here's why
many house paints blister...

Ever-present moisture vapor inside your home builds up. It pushes out through walls and siding, finally reaching the "skin" of paint protecting your home. If it is conventional non-breathing paint, the moisture is trapped, forcing the paint away from the siding to form blisters.

Here's why
SPRED HOUSE PAINT won't

Applied over unpainted wood, or previously painted surfaces not damaged by internal moisture, SPRED HOUSE PAINT won't blister or peel. Both the primer and the finish coat of SPRED HOUSE PAINT are formulated to allow moisture vapor that constantly accumulates inside your home to escape without damaging the protective "skin" of paint.

I was just thinking...®

IT WOULD BE wonderful if everybody thought as I think.

I would have all the public buildings put where they'd look the most beautiful. I'd have all the legislation rewritten to serve the finest purposes.

I would rezone my town to keep business and industry far away from my front door—and vice versa. I would have a zoo in the closest park and stock it with a gentle lion, a lovely giraffe, several hundred monkeys and elephants, but no snakes.

I would do away with the high cost of living and making a living. There would be no income tax if I were running things. We'd figure out something else.

Raises would all be confined to merit, not scale. The things that once cost $7 and are now $27 would be on sale. Permanently.

I would sit down with the Russians and the Prussians and the Cubans and the Chinese and drink tea or vodka or tequila, if necessary, to explain how it is with us and find out what's wrong with them. We would all be good friends because they would agree with me.

THERE WOULD be no more abandoned children or suffering kittens or puppies or ducklings. The farmers could grow what they want to, and the steel mills and coal mines could produce as much as they can because the demand would increase all the time. There would be no more strikes. I'd see to that.

I'd have to be President, of course. But we could elect some of the people I trust as Vice President and senators and judges and so forth.

Everything in this nation would be operated according to the manner which I visualize as the greatest good. Nobody would worry any more under my benevolent leadership because I know that I know what's best for all of us.

Somehow I have a sneaking suspicion this sounds less and less like a fine idea and more and more how every dictatorship began.

Ike takes old Army colleague Alfred M. Gruenther—now head of the American Red Cross—on tour of farm.

Brig. Gen. Arthur S. Nevins, on an adjoining tract of 200 acres. General Nevins has been managing the combine, but Ike told me that he expects to take a more active interest in cattle raising. He has about 80 head of Black Angus, 70 hogs, a flock of chickens, four quarter horses, which the Eisenhower grandchildren ride, and three dogs —two English setters and a Weimaraner.

Ike and Mamie first sampled the postcard beauty of Gettysburg as early as 1917, when as a captain he was stationed at Camp Colt, a World War I cantonment. The Eisenhowers bought the farm in 1950, undoubtedly with the urging of their good friend George E. Allen, who has an estate nearby. Ike's original investment in the house and land has been placed at $40,000, but after extensive remodeling, rebuilding, and additional purchases of acreage and stock, estimates of the total value now run as high as $250,000.

The 12-room main house is of immaculate white brick, with gray shutters and a gray slate roof. It sits amid exquisite plantings on a velvety lawn. Two huge barns and a silo are to the rear. John's home, which was formerly the Eisenhower guesthouse, is located at one corner of the farm. Originally, it was a one-room schoolhouse, which Ike purchased for $5,000 from the township. Rebuilding has converted it into an attractive Colonial-type home.

Mamie Has a "Home" at Last

I met Mrs. Eisenhower at the farm. She had just returned from Washington, where she goes frequently to visit her numerous friends. Like Ike, Mamie seems particularly gay about her new life. The farm is the first permanent home she and Ike have had in 45 years of married life, and it is no secret that she had been counting the days in anticipation of settling down in Gettysburg.

Mrs. Eisenhower has only a small staff at the house—Sgt. John Moaney, the General's orderly and valet since 1942, and his wife Eleanor, who is the housekeeper and cook. Mamie, who sleeps later than Ike, often does her own morning shopping in Gettysburg and can be found selecting a ham or picking up some playthings for the grandchildren. One of her favorite spots, however, is a combination general store and curio shop in Biglersville, seven miles north of Gettysburg. Mamie brings her friends there and browses, intrigued by the unusual items.

The establishment of the Eisenhower farm has caused a remarkable transformation in Gettysburg's economy. One commercial plot, valued at $15,000 in 1950, sold for $65,000 after Ike was elected President. Souvenir and gift shops, displaying countless items—plates, glasses, pennants—bearing the pictures of Ike and Mamie, do a rush business the year round.

"It's as good as having another battle!" is the way one merchant sums it up.

The Happiest Days

While they have little control over the behavior of the rubbernecking tourists, the citizens of Gettysburg themselves now take the presence of the Eisenhowers in stride and try hard to let the famous family live a normal life. Ike and young David can patronize a downtown sporting-goods shop without causing too much of a stir, and Mamie's window-shopping will cause only a few heads to turn.

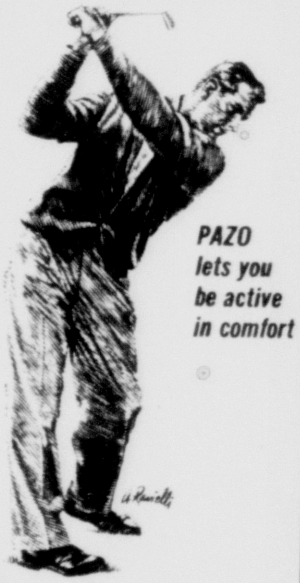

Ike is a member of the Gettysburg Presbyterian Church and attends services regularly. He had been offered the pew which Lincoln occupied in prayer the day he arrived to make his historic address, but Ike declined. His reserved pew is three rows in back of Lincoln's. However, he is escorted to the door by the Rev. Robert A. MacAskill, the pastor, at the end of each service.

"This was a courtesy we extended to Mr. Eisenhower when he was President," the Reverend MacAskill says. "It also facilitated his exit, enabling him to avoid the crowding. I thought it appropriate to continue."

The place the Eisenhowers hold in the hearts of Gettysburgites was eloquently expressed at the huge "home-coming" reception which honored Ike and Mamie the day after they left the White House. Said Henry M. Scharf, toastmaster for the occasion:

"Gettysburg has been a community of destiny. It has had many great days. This is a great day; if it isn't our greatest day, it certainly is our happiest day."

Possibly it was the happiest day for Ike and Mamie, too.

Jack La Lanne Shows How to Keep in Shape

Hollywood's physical culture authority tells you about "trimnastics"— the art of keeping body and wallet in good condition

JACK LA LANNE, one of Hollywood's leading exponents of physical fitness and good health, has proved to thousands of Americans that you don't need expensive equipment or exhausting calisthenics to get rid of fat and flab. For FAMILY WEEKLY, Jack describes what he calls "trimnastics," exercises needing only book, chair, mirror, and motivation. And to provide motivation, there's the fetching trimness of film star Barbara Luna, who helps Jack show how it's done.

Captions from the book, "The Jack La Lanne Way to Vibrant Good Health," by Jack La Lanne. © 1960 by Prentice-Hall, Inc., Englewood Cliffs, N. J.

To keep stomach muscles firm, balance a book on your head, raise each leg full length in front of you, then lower; repeat four times.

To slim the "back porch" you sit on, place a book on your head, slowly swing each leg out behind you and down to count of four; repeat three times.

Now we'll get to the thighs and hips. Steady the book on your head, pull in your tummy, and do four slow knee bends. Rest. Take a deep breath and exhale.

Do you want better-looking legs from the toes to the knees? Try this. Put heels together, toes out. Set the book on your head. Now rise on toes to the count: one-two, three-four. Up-down. Up-down.

To firm that inner thigh, sit squarely on chair. Clench the book between knees, bringing knees to chest. Repeat in an up-down motion.

This exercise strengthens muscles in your chest, arms, and abdomen. First, lower head quickly between legs, then come up, arching shoulders, flinging arms apart.

Startled, the bank president and his wife awoke to the sight of cold steel.

JOHN A. WHALEN and his wife Minnie were awakened at two o'clock in the morning by a light shining in their eyes. It came from a flashlight held by a masked man standing at the foot of their bed. The intruder had gained entry to their home near Indianapolis, Ind., by smashing in a window.

He had a gun, and he ordered them to dress. They were forced to take him to the Southport Bank and Trust Company, of which Whalen was president. The gunman held them prisoners in the bank through the night, and as each employee reported for work he became a captive.

"Just take it easy and nobody will get hurt," the bandit warned. "All I want is the money."

The captives waited tensely near a vault until the time lock clicked. Then, prodded by the robber's gun, the banker opened the vault. The bandit scooped up $70,000, stuffed it into a pillowcase, and took the keys to Whalen's car. All the captives except two women were herded into the vault, then the robber sped away in the banker's car.

Within 15 minutes, the area was filled with state police. Roads in Marion County were blocked off, and police planes droned overhead.

An hour later, Whalen's car was found abandoned on Banta Road. A witness had seen a man get out of it, enter a 1956 pink Oldsmobile convertible, and head for Indianapolis.

"We've got him bottled up," said Capt. Robert Dillon, chief of Indiana state detectives. "He can't drive out of the county in that car." But, Captain Dillon realized, the pink convertible even now might be hidden in one of the thousands of garages in Indianapolis and finding it might be impossible.

Captain Dillon ordered a canvass of the area around the Whalen home on the theory that the bandit had "cased" the place before his foray.

The canvass went on for two days, and it seemed that the officers would draw a blank. Meanwhile, many false leads were run down and checked out.

Then detectives found a 20-year-old girl who lived in the vicinity of the Whalen home. On two occasions, she said, she had seen a pink 1956 Oldsmobile convertible in the area.

"Do you remember the license number?" a detective asked eagerly.

"Why, yes. It was AO-8656."

A check of license records revealed that the owner of the car was Pauline Drake. The name Drake was familiar to Captain Dillon, who recalled that a man named Roy Rudolph Drake had a record as a bank robber. A further check showed that Pauline was his wife.

A search for Drake was launched, and he was traced to a house in Indianapolis and from there down to New Orleans. Louisiana authorities were alerted, and Roy Drake was arrested in the French Quarter, where he had been spending money lavishly.

He confessed the robbery and was returned to Indianapolis, where he was convicted in Federal court and sent to prison for a long term. He is now serving his sentence.

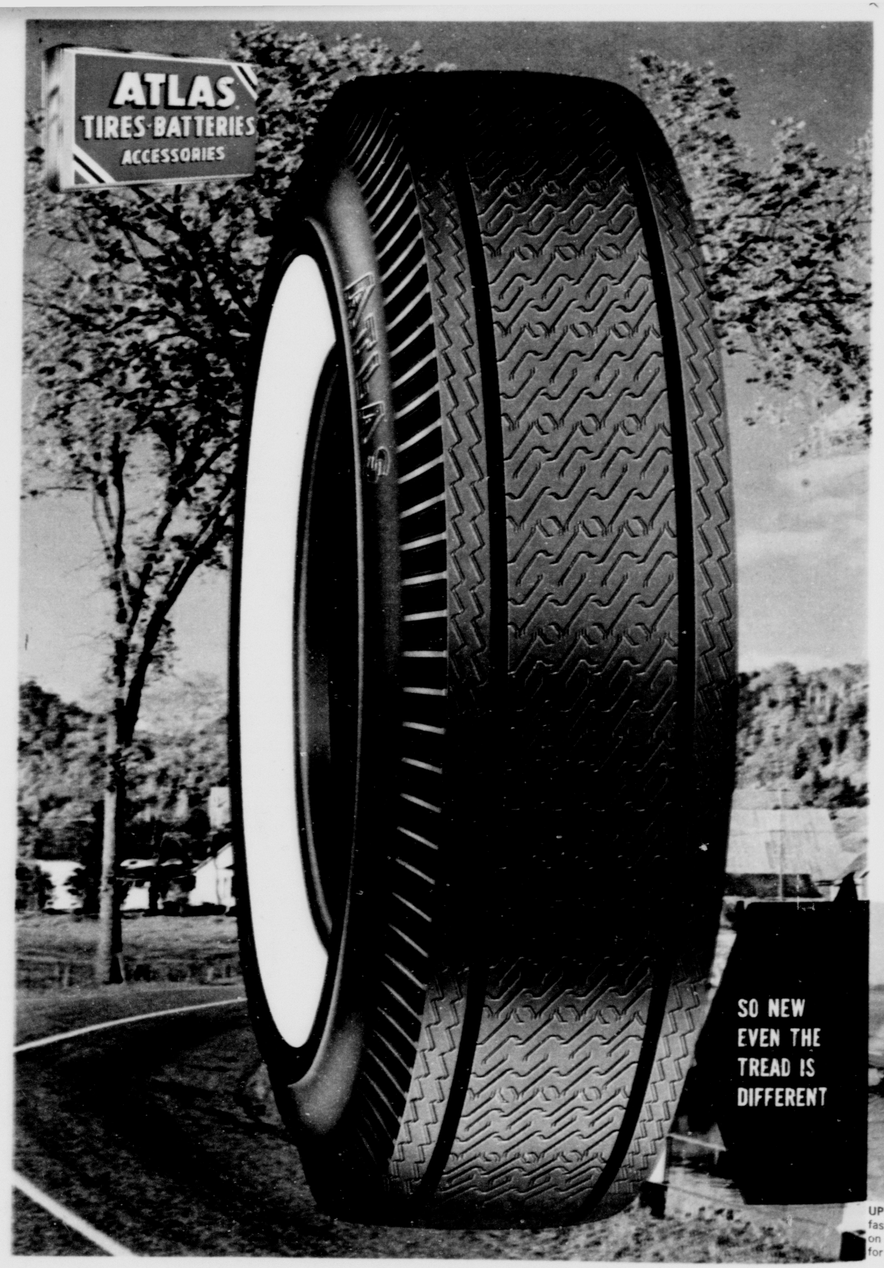

The clue that broke the case—a witness memorizing a license number—was so unusual that Captain Dillon asked the girl how she happened to remember it.

"Until about two months ago," she explained, "I was going with a boy who had a pink 1956 Oldsmobile convertible. I broke off with him because he was so jealous. When I told him I wouldn't see him any more, he threatened to follow me any time I went out with somebody else.

The girl recalled that she had seen the convertible near the Whalen house.

"I didn't want trouble, so I memorized his license number. When I saw that pink convertible near Mr. Whalen's house, I thought it was my former boy friend's. That's why I took a good look at the license number. I wanted to make sure it wasn't his."
